U.S. Continues Exercise After Deaths of Nine

By CHARLES C. CORDERY

HUELVA, Spain (UPI)—The U.S. Marine Corps carried on today with the largest peacetime amphibious landing exercise in history despite the loss of nine lives in a helicopter collision.

Under Secretary of the Navy Paul B. Fay, who watched the landings from the flagship Pocono, said the tragedy "put a cloud over the whole operation."

"It's the price you pay when you have maneuvers which deal with war."

The nine Marines were killed and 13 others were injured Monday when two helicopters in which they were being ferried ashore from ships collided 800 feet above the Huelva beaches and plummeted into a wooded area.

The dead were members of the 3rd Battalion of the 8th Marines, 2nd Marine Division, stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Their names were withheld pending notification of their families.

The men were part of a massive joint U.S.-Spanish landing exercise called Steel Pike I. The exercise involves 94 ships and about 60,000 men.

By the end of the first day, U.S. forces had put ashore 10,000 men. Another 2,000 Spanish marines landed safely at an adjacent beach along this Atlantic coastal area.

When Mickey discovered that she and the sergeant had something in common, she kept him with her for several hours as an escort while visiting Ent Air Force Base. Mickey was born with a spinal birth defect. The sergeant was a polio victim in 1959.

Cambodia Is Blamed for Strafe Attack

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Defense Ministry charged today that Cambodia sent three air force planes to strafe and bomb a Vietnamese border area in the Plain of Reeds.

The Cambodian government warned that it will sever diplomatic relations with the United States and recognize North Viet Nam, and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front if American and South Vietnamese forces commit further "aggression" against Cambodia.

Cambodia broke diplomatic ties with South Viet Nam last year. Prince Norodom Sihanouk threatened several times to break with the United States.

The South Vietnamese Defense Ministry said that the Cambodian planes shot up an area a mile or so from where American Special Forces Capt. Herman Y. Towery was allegedly seized by Cambodian troops last week and later found dead.

Sihanouk followed up his threat to break relations with the United States with a statement warning that Cambodia

Council Hears Second Reading of Sales Tax

The ordinance to adopt a two per cent city sales tax was read this morning in city council chambers.

This was the second reading of the sales and use tax ordinance. The ordinance was not adopted by the council before press time.

The ordinance was passed on first reading Oct. 13 by council.

Reading on the 52 page ordinance was delayed to the end of the council meeting, which began at 9:30 a.m.

Spokesmen for the Consumers Against Sales Tax Committee said they will begin circulating petitions to place the sales tax question to a vote of the people.

Spokesmen for the committee said the vote on the sales tax may be sought at either the April city election or at a special election.

Council agreed October 13 to let the people vote on an amendment to the City Charter to put a 12 mill ceiling on the city property levy whenever a two

'They Are Going To Feel Sorry,' Johnson Claims

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson aims his campaign at the Northeast today aftr a swing through the Deep South in which he lectured hecklers, assailed Barry Goldwater by name and promised to seek an end to North-South differences.

Johnson, who is making more and more direct jabs at Goldwater with the election only a week away, speaks tonight in Boston, Pittsburgh and Evansville, Ind., before flying to Albuquerque, N.M., for an overnight stay.

Fountain Mayor Admits Working for Developer

The mayor of Fountain and a councilman Monday admitted working for a land developer who has a contract with the town.

The mayor was denying all six charges in recall petitions to the audience that packed the council meeting room.

One of the charges was that William Clements and Associates have not constructed a water line "in accordance with the contract between the said Clements and Associates and the Town of Fountain." The town supplies water by contract to the Little Ranches.

Councilman Henry Dan Kelling and Mayor D. J. Hankins said they had worked for Clements on a contract basis. Hankins called Clements a very good promoter.

Petitions to recall the entire Town Council and mayor were presented Monday night.

"I think the petition is illegal," said Town Attorney Fillmore Gibson.

He explained the petition was circulated before the council had been in office six months. The legal date to start recall proceedings would have been Oct. 20 under state law, the attorney said.

The notarized petitions contained names equal to 65 per cent of the vote in the town election last April, 191 signatures.

Only 40 per cent of registered town voters' signatures were necessary to start the recall process of removing officials by a new town election.

The town attorney advised that the petition be accepted. He said protests against the petition could be filed within the next 15 days.

Gibson defended council's purchase of 122 shares of Fountain Mutual Irrigation Co. stock for $10,845.

Contrary to the charge in recall petitions that the town has "no legitimate use" for Fountain Mutual water, Gibson said the water was needed to supply surface water to protect the wells of the town.

"We are more or less stealing the water under the town

'He Wants to Be Crowned,' Barry Charges

By WALTER R. MEARS

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater accused President Johnson today of playing upon questions of race, religion and hardship in America in his drive to keep the White House.

The Republican presidential candidate said Johnson wants an election-day mandate to set the nation on what he called a plunge to socialistic ruin.

"He won't be satisfied with just an election — he wants to be crowned," the Arizona senator said. "He wants total trust, total love, total power over your lives."

Johnson is the "most power hungry man in American politics," Goldwater said in a speech prepared for delivery in Bristol.

He hopped into the South, with London, Ky., also on his schedule, after a wild, full-house rally in New York's Madison Square Garden.

There — before a crowd of more than 18,000 that cheered 28 minutes before he could start his speech — Goldwater accused Johnson of "political daddyism . . . as old as demagogues and despotism."

It was more of the same today in traditionally Republican eastern Tennessee.

"Somebody," Goldwater said, "and it's got to be you, must tell this man who uses race, who uses religion, who uses hard-

Britain Blasts Rhodesian White Supremacy Plan

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Britain warned Southern Rhodesia's white rulers today they will be guilty of treason and rebellion if they unilaterally declare the East African territory's independence.

Economic disaster, banishment from the Commonwealth and isolation from most of the world would follow if the country breaks from Britain, a government statement said.

The stern statement came from Prime Minister Harold Wilson's office a day after 622 African chiefs and headmen meeting outside Salisbury gave a unanimous "yes" to Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith's "independence now" plan.

The British government had said earlier it did not consider the chiefs represented the opinion of Southern Rhodesia's African majority, which in 1961 outnumbered the whites 3.6 million to 221,500.

Smith has scheduled a national referendum Nov. 5 in which the largely white electorate is expected to vote emphatically for independence now. Smith then is expected to demand an okay from Britain, with the threat of declaring independence unilaterally if refused.

The British warning sent a shock through the Rhodesian capital. Some white Rhodesians felt it might force Smith and his colleagues to retreat.

Fremont County Ballot Hearing Is Recessed

The cease and desist hearing of alleged irregularities in applications for absentee ballots by Fremont county clerk Mary McDonough was recessed Monday afternoon to 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. The hearing is being conducted by Fourth District Judge G. Russell Miller of Colorado Springs, who recessed the hearing until Wednesday, because he has previous court committments Tuesday.

The hearing was scheduled to get underway at 10 a.m. Monday, but was recessed until 1 p.m., and then recessed again until 2 p.m.

The court action has been taken on petition of Harold R. Harward, Fremont county attorney, and William R. Stinemeyer, Chairman of the county's Republican Central Committee.

The petition claims that Miss McDonough has irregularly issued absentee ballots for the general election of 1964.

The petitioners submitted 171 applications for absentee ballots as evidence in court Monday afternoon. Of the total, 48 were for registered Republicans, 38 for registered Democrats, and 97, Independents. Some of the applications requested absentee ballots for more than one person.

Mack Witty of Salida is representing Miss McDonough in the hearing.

'Kingship' for LBJ Assured, Astrologers Say

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian astrologers have consulted the heavenly bodies and say President Johnson will win big next Tuesday.

The latest reading of the stars from India also indicates victory for Democratic Senate hopefuls Pierre Salinger in California, Edward Kennedy in Massachusetts, and Robert Kennedy in New York.

But some of Johnson's top aides—Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson—will be out looking for jobs next year, according to the astrologers.

The star - reading fraternity has made a good living off this sort of thing for centuries in India. Many Indian government officials consult them frequently.

One astrologer says Johnson was born under a star grouping that assures "kingship" so he doesn't have to worry about Republican challenger Barry Goldwater.

An astrologer-priest, a Hindu who believes in reincarnation, says Johnson in one of his former lives was a Hindu holy man who wandered the woods of northern India. On Tuesday, the priest says, Johnson will collect his just reward for this hard tour of duty.

K.N. Swamy, a south Indian astrologer who claims to have foreseen President Kennedy's assassination, says Goldwater does not have a chance because the Sun, Mercury, Saturn and a few other heavenly bodies ganged up on the Arizona senator a long time ago.

12th Fatality Reported in State Hunting

CANON CITY (UPI)— The death of another hunter on Colorado's Western Slope has increased to 12 the number of fatalities since the big game hunting season opened Oct. 17.

Fremont County Undersheriff S. V. Towne Monday identified the latest victim as Donald Raymond Stocks, 36, of La Sal, Utah.

The officer said the Utah uranium miner was killed late Sunday when his heavy game rifle accidentally discharged while he was riding in a pickup truck near Tallahassee Creek, 28 miles northwest of Canon City.

The bullet from the 300-magnum rifle struck him in the jaw. He was killed instantly. Companions in the truck with him, Butch Nelson of La Sal, and Mrs. Shirley McCall and her son, Jerry, 9, of Canon City, were uninjured.

Three of the 12 victims have died of shooting accidents. The others died of heart attacks.

Over 1 Million Vehicles Are Noted in State

DENVER (AP) — There will be an estimated 1,117,000 registered motor vehicles in Colorado by the end of 1964 — a 4.4 per cent increase from 1963—Rex Whitton, federal highway administrator, reported Monday.

Whitton said that nationally there will be about 86,193,000 motor vehicles registered by the end of the year, up 4.4 per cent from last year.

California, Whitton said, will lead all states with 9.5 million motor vehicles. The Wyoming total, he said, is expected to be 225,000.

Retired Officer Demands LBJ's 'Court Martial'

By United Press International

Retired Army Capt. Eugene R. Guild sent a registered letter Monday to Defense Secretary Robert McNamara asking for the court martial of President Johnson as commander-in-chief of the U.S. armed forces.

The retired Army captain, who served with the Army artillery in France in World War I, charged the President with "sacrificing the lives and liberty of a number of his (the President's) fighting men in Viet Nam. . ."

He said Johnson "feared that using more troops to conduct the war forthrightly, or protecting his troops by removing them to a place where they would not be killed, would in either case lose him votes.

"As a consequence a number of his men were needlessly and uselessly killed and a number were captured by the Communist enemy."

Guild, whose son, Marine Lt. John Guild was killed in Korea in 1950, had his signature on the statement of charges witnessed by the adjutant general of the Army Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs.

A spokesman said the adjutant general did not know at the Driver Seriously Hurt; Car Lands Upside Down

GOLDEN (EP) — An automobile traveling at a high rate of speed sailed over one house and damaged the roof of another before landing upside down in a yard Monday night.

The driver, Ben Colangelo, 23, of Golden either jumped out or was thrown out before the car became airborne, and was reported in serious condition today at Colorado General Hospital in Denver.

Patrolman Roy Baker said Colangelo's car struck a truck, then sped off with Baker chasing. The automobile swerved off a turn and into a field where Colangelo parted company with his car.

It then shot up an embankment, cleared the roof of one house and damaged the home of Curnett Steinhauer.

Sudan President Promises End of Military Rule

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — After five days of bloody rioting, President Ibrahim Abboud promised Monday night to end the military's six-year rule of the Sudan. Opposition political leaders called off a general strike scheduled today.

Abboud set no date for the end of military control but in a broadcast promised progress toward a government "acceptable to all citizens."

His first move was to take full power personally, dissolving the ruling Supreme Military Council of eight generals and the Cabinet. Abboud was chairman of the council, which seized power in a bloodless coup Nov. 17, 1958.

There was no immediate indication whether other military leaders would bow to Abboud, who also is commander of the army and widely respected.

The president said he would call the legislature into session to consider protests made during disorders in Khartoum and adjoining Omdurman and North Khartoum.

Ten persons were killed and about 100 injured in the rioting, according to unofficial estimates. No Americans were among the casualties, although university students stoned the U.S. Embassy and attempted to burn it over the weekend.

Abboud's radio address appeared to go as far as possible toward satisfying the rioters without impugning the army.

He recalled his regime had announced a plan last year — which opposition leaders called a smokescreen to retain power — calling for "a sound political system."

Now, Abboud said, he had decided to take over full power "as a first step toward accelerating the attainment of our required goal."

Sudan, lying immediately south of the United Arab Republic, had been an independent parliamentary republic 34 months when the British-trained Abboud first seized power.

During the period of parliamentary rule, Sudan had been

Cardinal Urges World Wide Church Charity

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A Chilean cardinal proposed to the Ecumenical Council today that all Christians, Catholic and Protestant alike, sponsor an annual collection throughout the world to give money to the poor.

The proposal of Raul Cardinal Silva Henriquez of Santiago was designed not only to help the misery of poverty but to be an ecumenical work uniting all Christian brothers. He said it was imperative that "the use of riches be better distributed throughout the world" and that such an international and interdenominational collection would be a first step.

The idea also would be ecumenical in that a leading Protestant theologian, Oscar Cullman, suggested something along the same lines several years ago. Silva Henriquez said such a collection would be a "sacramental of the brotherhood."

Poverty is one of the problems of the contemporary age dealt with in the council tract "the church in the modern world," which the more than 2,200 cardinals, archbishops, bishops and other catholic prelates continued discussing in St. Peter's Basilica.

Growing Power Reported Of Soviet Secret Police

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — The strategic role of the KGB, the Soviet secret police, in the forced "retirement" of Khrushchev spotlights the growing power of this world-wide Communist organization and the men who control its covert operations.

Headed by Vladimir Senichastgyy, a virtual unknown, the powerful 500,000 - man secret police force operates under direct orders from Mikhail Suslov, the Soviet Communist Party's chief ideologist, and Nikolai Podgorny, head of the party's internal security commission.

This Suslov - Podgorny control over the KRGB gives the two Communist leaders temporary balance-of-power over Leonid Brezhnev, first secretary of the party, who has the public place of honor in the Kremlin's new ruling cabal.

The two leaders' power includes authority over key Soviet military units, all Communist parties abroad, Russia's international police force, Russian diplomats abroad, and the vast international Communist espionage and intelligence network.

According to one U.S. intelligence estimate, the KGB now has agents operating in every major Western country; several hundred have been placed in strategic positions in these governments, including the U.S.

Since early 1961, the KGB has sent into the West more than 200 deadly trained assassins, equipped with weapons that few people have ever heard of or seen.

GROWING LIKE TOPSY

The octopus-like KGB, which was temporarily curbed after Stalin's death, has been growing and extending its deadly power ever since Khrushchev cracked down on Marshal Zhukov in the late 1950s when the latter was minister of defense.

In forcing the popular Marshal Zhukov to retire, Khrushchev permitted the KGB to extend its power over the GRU (Soviet military intelligence -espionage organization), because he feared the GRU was being

TV Crime Shows Blamed For Juvenile Delinquency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee contended today that televised crime and violence is a direct cause — though not the only one — of juvenile delinquency.

In an interim report, the subcommittee said:

"On the basis of expert testimony and impressive research evidence, a relationship has been conclusively established between televised crime and violence and antisocial attitudes and behavior among juvenile viewers."

But it tempered its comments by stating that it did "not believe that television is either the sole or most significant cause of juvenile delinquency."

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency, said that the findings are significant because "each day more than 25 million children 12 and under look at television," spending "on the average, more time watching television than they do in either school or church."

The report noted that child psychiatrists and researchers had long recognized the connection between television violence and youth crime.

At the subcommittee's most recent hearings, the report added, network representatives "were now prepared to admit, in very general terms, that there was some kind of relationship between televised violence and the molding of children's attitudes and behavior."

The subcommittee said "primary responsibility for the prevailing policy, which features excessive crime and violence, rests with the three major networks. For it is clear that the networks have the key voice in determining programming content throughout the nation."

It said the networks have shown their concern with "healthy programming" by "the adoption and updating of their television code of good practice which is administered by the National Association of Broadcasters."

But it noted that association with the code is only voluntary and that the seal of good practice "has never been withdrawn because of an infringement of

GM Is Edging Forward in Auto Production

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. edged forward today in resuming production of its 1965 model automobiles after its month-long strike.

Local plant strikes limited the production rate to a trickle compared to GM's vast potential, greatest of the auto industry.

GM factories in Flint, Mich., a major cog in the nationwide complex, apparently led the way. Buick in Flint anticipated full production today.

Flint plants, where Chevrolet cars also are made, recalled an estimated 35,000 employes made idle in the United Auto Workers' strike that began Sept. 25.

GM officials declined to speculate when all 360,000 workers would be back on the job. More than 300,000 were idled in the strike.

At the last count, 28 UAW bargaining units had yet to settle their local issues. These included 15 of 23 assembly plants.

The UAW called off its national strike Sunday with approval of the national agreement between the union and the company. Local strikes were permitted to continue, however.

Local issues cover a wide variety of subjects, mostly bearing on plant conditions.

Hamburger Stand Holdup Man Killed

DENVER (AP) — A Denver policeman shot a man to death early today after the holdup of a hamburger stand, police said.

Officers said patrolman Tom Lohr fired a bullet into the head of Steven Warren Winn, 22, after Winn pulled a pistol and shot once at him. The officer was not wounded.

The shooting occurred, police said, after Lohr stopped Winn and another man in an alley near the hamburger stand. Winn's companion, identified by police as Daniel John McLoughlin, also 22, was being questioned this morning.

Police said Winn and McLoughlin came to Denver recently from Houston.

HELL CLEANS UP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Keep America Beautiful, the national anti-litter organization, has been collecting litter bags from all over the United States. They are used as part of its educational program.

One came from Hell, Mich., baring the slogan, in large red letters: "Dont' throw your trash all over Hell."

Proof that the light touch sometimes works comes from the Hell Chamber of Commerce: "It is amazing how much these little bags have eliminated litter in Hell. We have no problem whatsoever."

CONNORS GETS BIGGEST BREAK YET IN PICTURES

HOLLYWOOD — When Chuck Connors signed with Richard Quine for "Syanon," it got him the biggest picture break he's yet had. He'll be starred in Quine's next, "The Wildest West," a love and adventure tale of early days adapted from Richard Condon's book, "A Talent for Loving." Eight segments of Chuck's "Rifleman" series helped cinch the deal. The picture will be made in early spring on Utah and Mexican locations, and in Hollywood.

Elizabeth Ashley and her ex, James Farantino, will soon be studio neighbors. Farantino has just signed a long - term contract at Universal for both TV and movies; Elizabeth will be co - starring with her boy friend, George Peppard, at the end of November, in "The Third Day" at Warner's. Farantino's first picture assignment, "The War Lord," puts him in an 11th century tale; he'll be romancing Rosemary Forsythe on screen.

Lee Remick and Bill Colleran will work together for the first time since their marriage. They've bought "Win One, Lose One" for their Kate productions. Bill will produce and direct (he directed Richard Burton in "Hamlet"), and Lee will star. She plays the part of a secretary who inherits a million dollar company, gets into a fight with president of the concern, loses the fight but wins the man. The book is by William F. Glenn. It's a comedy with music and Lee will sing; she once did a singing bit on Broadway in a show lasting just nine days but wasn't discouraged, as her notices were good.

James Darren tries his luck on Broadway, come April, '65 playing the greatest loverboy of them all, "Casanova." He says his turn in "She Loves Me" at Melodyland starting Nov. 24 is just a warm-up for the big plunge. Texas Oilionaire Thomas Black is backing the Broadway production. Stu Phillips, who's written many recording hits for Darren, does the music, Stanley Stein the lyrics. He hopes to work in one more film on his Columbia contract before leaving the coast.

Liza Minnelli left New York for London over the weekend, will appear with her mother, Judy Garland, on Nov. 8 at the Palladium. All 3,700 seats were sold out 24 hours after the concert was announced. Capitol is recording the show live and an album of it will be out around the first of the year. There's a new one coming up for Liza too, tagged "Liza, Liza."

The Lee Marvins' split - up came about so fast after 14 years of happy marriage that their friends were dumb-founded. Lee moved into his dressing room at the studio (he's making "Cat Ballou") and converted it into bachelor quarters.

The pilot for Alan King's comedy TV series, "Feeney," will be shot in Miami Beach during the holidays while he's appearing at the Eden Roc.

That complete vacation Debbie Reynolds and Harry Karl were supposed to be having in Paris turns out to have a business angle also. Debbie bought Scopitone some time back: you drop in a dime, hear a record and see the person singing on a little color screen. Now I hear she and Harry are working like beavers directing new cuts for records. Some gal that every time she appears in public she helps sell shoes too.

Leslie Caron purred like a kitten when she told me she was named "star of the year" by Allied States association at a banquet in Detroit this week. She has a setup like old time movie stars before taxes and high cost of living wore the plush off the green. The luxurious home she occupies in Holmby Hills has three swimming pools (his, hers, and one for the kids), a tennis court big enough for Wimbledon, and bleachers seating 25.

She's going home to London to visit her children: "I believe all children should be brought up by their mothers instead of their fathers." The children are 6 and 5 now and they've been swimming since they were 2. She says they have a very happy relationship with their father. When the cildren were visiting her here this summer they saw one of her films for the first time. "They never knew I was in the movies; after I showed them 'Lili' and 'The Glass Slipper' they were silent. I said to Jennifer, 'You look sad — didn't you like it?' 'I'm not sad,' she said, 'but my eyes are crying.'" I asked if she'd rented her London house now; "Never — it's Georgian and Victorian." When I protested that she is so sophisticated she said, "I know, but not in my living."

During this stay here Leslie has made two pictures with Rock Hudson and "Father Goose" with Cary Grant: "Universal treated me like a queen, sent me to Paris to buy the most beautiful clothes — 16 changes of costume and specially made jewelry for them, and after the picture was finished gave them all to me. In 'Father Goose' I wear Cary Grant's old shirts and have a drunk scene which will surprise you. Cary plays a character part in old clothes, with beard and mustache, and never has a bottle out of his hand. If this doesn't get him an Oscar nothing ever will."

Leslie is much prettier now than when she first came to Hollywood. "Did love do this for you?" I asked. She said: "Uh huh, yes." She hasn't seen her former mother - in - law, Mrs. Jay Hormel, of late. "I talk with her occasionally; she was so wonderful to my parents and grandmother. You know that beautiful old house? After Mr. Hormel died she razed it to the ground and build a modern home on the site."

CAPITOL STUFF

By JERRY GREENE

WASHINGTON — Down in Tyler, Tex., today at a rose festival, no less, National Spase Agency Director James Webb delivered of himself a two-bit speech of the sweetness - and - light variety, calculated to please all and offend none.

At a rose festival the atmosphere certainly must have been an improvement on the atmosphere in the capital since the political campaigns hit the barnyard stretch. The ebullient director Webb was at his joyous best in talking of such things as "enduring national assets."

Such happy thoughts are not, however, designed to help the NASA chief crunch his way into national headline prominence, and perhaps more is the pity. For buried in the midst of the Webb address were a couple of paragraphs of sharp warning which should not be lost in the deluge of political blather.

"There should no longer be any doubt about the Soviet Union's intentions concerning space," Webb said. "The recent orbiting of the three-man Voskhod spacecraft for a 24 - hour period was a significant achievement. But more than that, it was a clear indication that their vigorous manned space flight program is continuing unabated."

What Webb meant was that it is of not importance that the premier who kissed the three Russian cosmonauts good-by at blast-off was not the same who would embrace them ardently upon their triumphal return. Changes in chiefs of state and future nuclear intentions could be left to the caught - short worriers at the State and Defense Departments.

The important point was that the Russians have now for seven years given steady, consistent and almost predictable evidence that they are methodically following a carefully planned program for the exploration and conquest of space — and that in manned flight operations the Soviets are maintaining, if not increasing, their two - year lead over the U.S.

U.S. space experts are convinced that regardless of Nikita Khrushchev's disclaimers (who was he?) the Russians have a set goal of putting men on the moon, and out into far reaches of space beyond.

RUSSIA TAKES A BIG JUMP

The experts will confess candidly that by orbiting a mixed crew — pilot, doctor and engineer — the Russians have taken a leapfrog jump in gathering data on manned space flight and the ability of assorted humans to function in weightless environment. NASA has just announced bids for orbital scientists, with the first group of trainees to be named next spring.

Unhappy as they were at being lapped again, the NASA people pushed no panic buttons at the Russian success. And they, too, kept boring away on the long - established schedule which, among other things, is intended to put an American astronaut on the moon before the end of this decade.

NASA is convinced of the soundness of its approach and the certainty of its path. The spacemen believe that they can catch Russia when Saturn V, the big rocket, comes along, and that the total U.S. effort will overwhelm that of the Soviet scientists.

Apart from the Ranger moonshot spectacular and the communications satellites — now accepted with a shrug by a people who couldn't orbit a grapefruit seven years ago — this has been a poor year in space for the general public.

ERA OF GLAMOR

There has been a lot of exciting stuff in the works for scientists and technicians. There has been still more of the same for the military people, with their sky spies and other assorted items which remain a reasonably well - guarded secret. But for the average taxpayer these things are but an accumulation of old iron, of small interest and no sex appeal.

FEUDING OVER KENNEDY'S TRIP TO TEXAS

The Johnson - Yarborough feud was blazing even in connection with the arrangements for John F. Kennedy's tragic trip to Texas last November. The then President was assassinated at Dallas Nov. 22. On Nov. 19, discussing Kennedy's Texas visit, he wrote:

"President Kennedy's two - day swing through Texas later this week has suddenly developed a political coloration which suggest that he is about to embark on the most tricky e g g-walking expedition of his career."

We then pointed out that Yarborough was hopping mad, convinced that an effort had been made by his enemies within the party to prevent him from accompanying Kennedy on the flight to Texas. And we added that Yarborough supporters in Texas were charging, at the same time, that the Connally - Johnson faction had left them out of Kennedy reception invitation lists.

There is no quarrel that Texas politics is played real rough. Johnson might be ready to admit as much in connection with his present efforts to get Connally into line before it is too late to save Yarborough.

Studies conducted by researchers at Columbia University, Boston Usiversity and the University of Illinois showed that portable typewriters could be used effectively in fourth and fifth grade classrooms to improve pupils' work habits, skills in English.

ships, who uses everything and everybody to further his political ambitions . . . somebody must tell him that American votes cannot be bought, cannot be coerced and will not be hijacked."

A self-styled underdog in the election a week away, Goldwater asked Tennessee voters:

"Do we want raw and naked power and ambition in the White House? Power stripped of humility, stripped of common honesty, devoid of any morality except the morality of get, the morality of grab, and the morality of gifts for the favored few?"

Goldwater said Johnson's "course is too far left."

"It would lead to a socialist America," he said. "Perhaps presided over by Lyndon Johnson's handpicked successor, Hubert Humphrey, the American politician whose roots are deepest in radical socialism."

Goldwater added: "The pace of this plunge to socialism, this careening, 90-mile-per hour ride to ruin, is a violation of every limit that the majority of Americans want to set.

"On such a ride," he said, "we may never have another chance short of the crack-up which socialism promises and the coddling of communism threatens."

At Madison Square Garden, capacity 18,000, there were no empty seats. Tickets sold for $2 to $1,000.

Two of New York's top Republicans — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Kenneth B. Keating — were in Albany, N.Y., where Keating was campaigning. He says he is not supporting Goldwater.

When Goldwater stepped to the rostrum, the crowd cheered and cheered. He smiled and waved for 20 minutes, then tried to start his speech. The crowd wouldn't let up, so he sat down. Finally, the roar quieted.

"A week from tomorrow there will occur the major political upset of this century," Goldwater declared, and the cheers sounded anew.

The New York turnout cheered long and loud when the senator denounced the practice of busing the city's children from their neighborhoods to achieve racial balance in public schools.

"I believe in our system of neighborhood schools and I want to see them preserved and improved and I don't want to see them destroyed because of a futile exercise in sociology which will accomplish absolutely nothing," he said.

Amid showers of confetti and balloons and repeated cheers, Goldwater declared that the nation was founded to give its citizens "freedom from government."

The retired army captain heads a Glenwood Springs organization called the "Fighting Homefolks of Fighting Men."

Guild said the organization was made up of parents, wives and other relatives of Americans held by the Communists, "and we are all trying to do something about it."

He said the organization is based in Glenwood Springs.

Guild in 1956 filed a $77 million law suit against the government for himself and 87 other survivors of the Korean War dead. The case was dismissed in U.S. District Court in Denver.

The suit charged Presidents Truman and Eisenhower had "betrayed our sons and husbands to the enemy in the Korean War."

The report said that the broadcasting industry should "accept primary responsibility for policing itself. But it added that between 1961 and 1964, "the extent to which violence and related activities are depicted on television . . . has not changed substantially."

The report praised the Columbia Broadcasting System for "a perceptible decline in the extent to which" it "features acts of violence."

The subcommittee noted that although it expects the industry to police itself, "the patience of Congress, though considerable, is notendless" and the "public's demand for concrete results grows more intense and indeed it should."

Tear Gas Used To Bring Boy Out of House

After repeated efforts to talk a 17-year-old youth out of a basement Sunday, police had to resort to tear gas grenades to flush the boy from his home where he had barricaded himself armed with several high powered rifles and a long-bladed knife.

According to the boy's father, the youth was "emotionally unstable and possibly dangerous." Apparently he had had an argument with his parents over a girl friend, and had then damaged the basement with a set of barbells before resorting to the rifles.

Sgt. Tom Hughes and Cpl. Clarence Gates of the police department directed the use of the tear gas. After the second grenade was thrown into the house the youth ran out the basement door unarmed, and was apprehended.

He was taken to Brady hospital and committed for a psychiatric examination, and police filed a lunacy complaint against the high school student in county court.

Light Comedy Opens Civic Players Season

By JOHN FETLER
Arts Critic

One of the qualities of Orvis Grout is that he selects the actors for particular roles in a play with finesse. Such was the case, again, as the Civic Players opened their season with the frothy comedy "Take Her, She's Mine," at the Fine Arts Center theatre Monday night, where it will appear for the rest of the week's run.

The story is of the father-daughter type, in which the daughter goes to college, with all of the attendant ninety-nine per cent pure comedy of the television type which is quite wholesome, complete with stock characterizations of the bumbling American father, the slightly more efficient American mother, and the kid gone crazy — at least while they're in college, until they see the light of honest work. The playwrights have built into this comedy also a dash of guaranteed sincerity, like those of soap commercials, so that the result is almost all fun, and just a bit of instruction about the ways of American college girls.

The play is entertaining, since it is not straining, although, to be sure, there are some hazards which the heroine faces and the propaganda of the play might be reassuring to parents that college kids do not sow the wild oats of the beat, just merely flirt with them.

The two outstanding parts were played by Kathie Aurin, as Mollie, the college girl; and Thomas Fischer, as her father.

As usual, Grout made the play hop, skip and jump, taking the actors and turning out admirable results, which goes only to show that there is no substitute for an excellent director.

The sets deserve special mention. Bishop Nash, the excellent artist, is in charge of scenic design, construction, and as stage manager. The quick-change sets, and the versatility, as they are "dropped" on the stage help to emphasize the lightness of this comedy which has the one benefit over television in that it is "live," and more like seven-up than champagne.

Denver Man Says Gun Taken From Car

A revolver left under the front seat of a car parked in the lot of a gas station was stolen over the weekend, police reported.

According to the report, none of the station employes had seen the gun while the car was at the station. Hinchman said the gun and holster were valued at approximately $45.

Fountain Mayor Admits Work For Developer

right now," if it is tributary to Fountain Creek, Gibson said.

He pointed out that this opinion, and the advice to buy shares in the irrigation company, came from the water attorney for the city and county of Denver.

Gibson said the town "could more cheaply" protect its water by buying shares in Fountain Mutual.

". . . $10,000 is a drop in the bucket for the water you take out of the ground," the town attorney said, advising purchase of 38 additional shares of stock.

Gibson asked if it was ". . . awfully poor advice to buy water the experts have told you to buy?"

A letter was presented from the state water engineer that said duties of Water Commissioner-Councilman Rufus Marshall did not conflict. The recall petitions said Marshall's two duties were "inconsistent."

The town auditors, Trichak, Trainor & Tillman, said all expenditures of town funds were authorized. They said this was an answer to allegations on recall petitions that some town officials ". . .entered into financial transactions with the Town of Fountain contrary to provisions of state law."

Mayor Hankins said persons responsible for the recall petitions were ". . .very definitely trying to stifle the growth of your city."

"We are blacktopping Walnut Street," the mayor said, listing other current town improvements.

He said he would "shortly" ask for second-class city status for the town of 2,500. (Home Rule city status was defeated in the April to win election.)

The present administration was praised by developers Will Claiborne and Wilbur Hanes and organizers of the a proposed state bank for Fountain.

Claiborne, developer of Fountain Crest Estates, asked to hwven pis name removed fro have his name removed from signed in a "fit of anger."

Hanes thanked Council for their work in securing necessary water.

Bank organizers said they received water, streets and everything they needed from town hall. Their letter of praise was ordered read into the meeting minutes by unanimous vote of the council.

Mayor Hankins said: "I feel badly that the man who carried this petition isn't here tonight."

The petition was instigated by Richard Christian Jr., a defeated candidate for council in the April election.

They Are Going To Feel Sorry, Johnson Claims

through five cities in Florida, Georgia and South Carolina Monday. Returning to the White House long after dark, he obviously was pleased about his reception in the South — even though he was confronted in Augusta, Ga., with the most severe heckling of his campaign.

Interrupted several times at Augusta by chants of "We want Barry," Johnson left his prepared text to do some off-the-cuff sermonizing on good manners.

He said: "I was always taught as a little boy when people didn't know any better, and when they made mistakes, and when they were rude, and when they didn't show good manners, to turn your other cheek and say, 'Dear Lord, please forgive them for they know not what they do.'"

Johnson, who smiled through much of the opposition chanting, insisted he didn't feel hurt or angry.

"We just feel sorry," he said. "And I think that on Nov. 3 they are going to feel sorry, too."

Earlier, in Macon, Ga., Johnson faced similar but less noisy pro-Goldwater demonstrations that included the waving of outspoken anti-Johnson placards.

There he said: "Some people like to write signs about individuals. And I guess I would do that, too, if I didn't have any issues to talk about. But we do have issues."

The President, who only recently has begun to take direct pokes at Goldwater, did so several times Monday.

At Macon, he mentioned half a dozen votes taken when he was Senate Democratic leader on proposals to increase defense spending.

After each citation, he shouted: "Goldwater voted no and I voted aye."

Johnson suggested that voters judge Goldwater by his deeds rather than his words.

PO Will Be Back In Re-Modeled Location Soon

Post office facilities should be back at their original location at Pikes Peak and Nevada Avenues by the second week in November, Robert H. Wardwell, postmaster, said Monday.

"Our new lock boxes have not arrived yet," Wardwell said. "That's the only thing holding us up right now. As soon as they arrive and are installed, the building will be ready for us to move back."

The main post office was moved to a temporary location at 527 S. Tejon late in August when contractors began remodeling the old premises.

The main post office was built in 1908 and has been occupied since 1909.

The renovation consists primarily of new ventilating and heating systems, repainting the office, new lobbies and other inside changes. A 70-foot loading dock has been added to the exterior. The project has cost about $231,000.

"We are confident that we will be back in the permanent offices well before the Christmas rush begins," Wardwell said.

Items Valued at $120 Taken From Truck

Welding equipment valued at $120 was taken from a truck parked in a truck rental lot over the weekend, police reported.

Delbert W. Wagner, of 3009 S. 8th St., told police he parked a truck rented from the Ryder Truck Rental in their lot at 124 W. Cimmarron St. at 4:30 p.m. Saturday. Employes at the lot said the lot was open until at least 10 p.m. Saturday night.

The burglary was discovered at 7 a.m. Sunday. Missing from the truck were two complete sets of welding tools, including torch tips, cutting tips, and oxygen regulators. Wagner said he left the equipment on the floorboards of the truck.

Cornerstone Reveals Cuba Was a Problem in 1899 Too

A small tin and copper box hidden in the cornerstone of a building here 65 years ago was opened Monday afternoon. Contents were remnants of 1899 and the donors' legacy to the future.

The unsealed box was part of the cornrstone of Perkins Hall on the Colorado College campus. Perkins was torn down recently to make way for the proposed $2.25 million Armstrong Hall.

CC President Lloyd E. Worner opened the box in his office. Armin B. Barney, chairman of the CC Board of Trustees, was present to help Worner identify the contents.

The box itself was tarnished with its 65 - year lack of attention. The articls inside were papers yellowed with age. Included in the contents were copies of the Colorado Springs Gazette and the Colorado Springs Telegraph, the morning and afternoon papers of the day. Headlines told of the progress of the Spanish - American War, the Jeffries - Fitzsimmons championship fight in New York City and London's Charity Bazaar. One headline, strangely enough, said, "The Real Cuba of Today - Man on Spot Thinks It May Be Quiescent Volcano."

Advertisements had men's suits for $5 and up, ladies high-buttoned shoes and shares in a copper mining company for five cents a share.

There also was a catalogue. It listed tuition as $35 a year. Courses offered included Latin, Greek, German and Inventional Geometery.

The articles were placed in the box on June 13, 1899, during commencement weekend. William F. Slocum as CC president at that time. Other papers were a text of the commencement address, a program of the week's activities, a copy of the hymn sung at the graduation ceremony and the names of the seven men and seven women graduating.

One of the names listed was the late Willis Armstrong. Also on the list was the late Miss Dell Heizer. Armstrong later became president of the Colorado Springs National Bank and married Miss Heizer. Armstrong Hall, the new building which will replace Perkins Hall, is being named in honor the late same Willis Armstrong.

Contents of the box will be put on display in the Colorado Springs National Bank today and will be there for the next two weeks.

The articles then will go to William S. Jackson, a member of the CC Board of Trustees who is familiar with many of the persons mentioned in the papers.

When Jackson has finished examining the papers, they will be given to Harvey Carter, CC professor of history, who will decide on how the articles should be dispersed to the various collections.

Growing Power Reported Of Soviet Secret Police

used to train persons to assassinate him.

This unpublished story is detailed in a national intelligence estimate, kept tightly locked in the Central Intelligence Agency's files, as follows:

"During the year that he was chief of the GRU, beginning in October 1956, Colonel General Sergey Matveyevich Shtemenko established a sabotage - diversionist school near Tula or Tambov, with an enrollment of 200 specialists who would eventually be assigned to worldwide sabotage groups.

"The school was created on Shtemenko's initiative, although with the concurrence of Marshal Zhukov, then minister of defense, but without the knowledge of Khrushchev. Later, fearing that Zhukov planned to use these specialists against him, Khrushchev had Zhukov retired from active duty and Shtemenko demoted to the position of deputy commander of a military district. Officially Shtemenko was censured by the political apparatus for having conspired with Zhukov to establish the school without the permission of the Central Committee.

"At the time of his formation, the school reportedly was closely affiliated with, if not subordinated to, the GRU operations. Despite Shtemenko's ouster, the school has continued to operate and is now under the KGB, which took over direction of the GRU operation."

WORLDWIDE OPERATIONS

The intelligence estimate reveals that the "graduates" of this espionage school are given assignments throughout the world as well as within the USSR, stating:

"These graduates are assigned to sabotage-espionage groups located in the West, and Communist satellite countries as well as the USSR. The school's new operations under the KGB reflect an amendment in Soviet espionage-military doctrine. Executive action by those forces may no longer be considered as having tactical application and instead could now be considered in effect one of the strategic implements available to the Kremlin."

The KGB also has a new activity, according to the intelligence estimate.

"The KGB is using its agents to plant articles in pro-Western or neutralist publications," it states. "Such articles are not necessarily pro-Soviet in tone, but are designed to further Soviet interest in some fashion."

Another CIA study of the KGB, which was sent to the White House in 1961 but never acted upon, revealed that the secret police organization had a major role in preparing the way for Soviet arms shipments to Cuba.

"In June 1960, two senior KGB officiers traveled to East Berlin to assist in the organization of a program of arms aid for Cuba," the intelligence estimate warned. "A KGB intelligence official residing in East Berlin also assisted in the formulation of this program, designed to prepare the Castro regime to resist an American invasion of Cuba."

In that suppressed document, the CIA forewarned that "arms supplies and military experts were to be made available to the Cubans." It stated that "shortly after the KGB delegation left Berlin, a Cuban group arrived there ostensibly to discuss economic matters, but an unidentified Cuban intelligence official is reported to have been among this group."

In addition to Cuba, the KGB arranged for "arms and ammunition shipments to Southeast Asia insurrectionists through covert channels."

Judy Garland, Often Drunk, Sid Luft Says

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Witnesses in her husband's child custody suit told Superior Court that Judy Garland:

—Once ran screaming around a hotel suite "bouncing off the walls" and was caught by her former agent just before she could leap from a hotel window.

—Was frequently drunk in front of the children, Lorna, now 11, and Joe, 9.

—And used to take four bottles of wine with her when she went to a concert.

The testimony was given Monday as Miss Garland's estranged husband, Hollywood producer Sid Luft, pressed his demand for custody of their children. Miss Garland is now in London. Their California divorce is still pending. She is 41; Luft is 46.

Vernon J. Alves, the former agent, said that in the hotel incident in Philadelphia in May 1961 "the last thing I did was catch her before she could get out the window and throw her down on a couch." He said Miss Garland subsequently fired him.

Rhoda Chiolak, the Lufts' onetime housekeeper, said Miss Garland was "intoxicated around the children many times."

Albert Paul, Miss Garland's former hairdresser, said that he attended concerts with Miss Garland to which she would take an ice bucket containing four quart-sized bottles of wine. He said she would empty them during the evening.

Attacks Are Tasteless, Says Hubert

By HARRY KELLY

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey charged today that Sen. Barry Goldwater has made "tasteless personal attacks" on President Johnson and has launched "a systematic campaign to degrade almost every aspect of American life."

"The Goldwaterites," said Humphrey in remarks prepared for a meeting of Democratic workers, "spread doubt and suspicion about our government. They scold our youth, vilify our cities and show a cynical disregard of our elderly."

"To the Goldwaterites," added the Democratic vice presidential candidate, "America is sick and tired. What an insult to this great country!"

Humphrey addresses a get-out-the-vote appeal to the workers after a get-out-the-dollars appeal to the Presidents Club, an organization of party contributors.

Humphrey turned his campaign to New York — for the third time — after delivering perhaps his sharpest attack on Goldwater, the GOP presidential candidate, in a University of Wisconsin speech that his aides considered one of the best so far.

Hoarse from weeks of speeches and now and then forced to talk over the blare of a Goldwater fan's horn, Humphrey charged "the logical consequences of Goldwaterism are only too clear.

"If we were to do as he bids us, we would find ourselves eventually at war all over the globe — war fought with nuclear weapons in Eastern Europe, escalated war in Southeast Asia, war against Cuba, war in Berlin."

And if Goldwater means what he says about cutting foreign aid, in opposing the Peace Corps, "if he means no negotiations but merely ultimatums," said Humphrey, then—

"I warn this audience and this generation that if this man should be elected president of the United States there is no alternative — the only prospect is one of disaster and one of cataclysmal tragedy for the American people and for the world."

As the minority party in the House, outnumbered three to two, we have nevertheless written a vigorous and responsible record of achievement. We have battled against Government waste and endless spending programs and for sound legislation aimed at solving the pressing problems facing the nation.

Since coming to the House of Representatives, your voice and your vote have been indispensable to our successes and vital to our efforts to alert the country to the problems of an ever-expanding government and an ever-spending administration. I sincerely hope your constituents will return you to Congress with a resounding mandate to continue your fight for good government.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I've learned, after a year and a half, to sit back and enjoy my very active son. I only hope my mistakes in furnishing our home might be spared other young couples.

Forget about those exquisite and elegant pieces of furniture—stick to formica tables and pole lamps where possible.

Use stack tables or TV trays for entertaining. That coffee table is a menace.

Get slip covers for chairs and couch the day you find out you're pregnant. . .

Move precious books and ornaments up high. Better to be able to enjoy them there than not at all.

Put safety plugs in all outlets and use locks or straps to keep all cabinets off-limits for busy little fingers.

By-pass those luxurious rugs and carpets, especially velveteens . . . babies do have accidents!!

Put guards on windows.

Serve the child food in plastic cups and dishes.

When a child learns to climb the stairs, take the time and patience to teach him how to climb back down.

Purchase lightweight washable bedspreads.

Use window shades instead of Venetian blinds—they are less expensive, much easier on your fingers when it's time to clean, less dangerous for little fingers, and no cords are left dangling to choke innocent babies.

Heloise, I am not only a new mother, but I also work in a children's emergency room in a hospital and these suggestions come from many other mothers, as well as yours truly.

Let's face facts — a happy home makes a happy child!

From a Heloise-Hinted Homemaker, —Nancy McGovern

Dear Heloise:

After I launder my cafe curtains, I pin a lining of plastic on the wrong side of them as far as my kitchen window opens.

I use tiny safety pins and pin the sheer type large plastic bags (which my husband's shirts come back from the laundry in) just to fit.

This lining is quite invisible and protects the curtain from soil, rubbing against the screen, and certainly saves doing the curtains up so often.

Any time I have a cantaloupe or honey dew melon to put in the refrigerator, I put it inside a plastic bag and seal it tight with a rubber band. This way the odor does not permeate the refrigerator and our melons are cold when we are ready to eat them. —Dora Drain

Dear Dora:

Pinning plastic on the back of curtains is a fantabulous idea! —Heloise

Raincoat designer Lawrence of London, keeper of fashiondom's most famous velveteen zoo, has added another rain coat to his tiger and leopard print menagerie. This time it's civet-printed velveteen, brush-stroked to resemble real fur. He showed it in a shaped - front coat with back swagger, and a double - breasted judo coat, styled with kimono sleeves and a mandarin collar.

Come spring, watch for the invasion of a new baby doll 7shoe silhouette from Europe.

The National Shoe RetailersAssociation said the shape being shown most often is a far cry from the very short baby doll last. These are elongated; heels tend to be curvy and shaped. The resulting shoe: much more feminine and elegant.

Ron Postal, director of the National Council of Men's Fashions, on a busman's holiday in Europe for a look at continental styles, reports: "The average man in Paris is only one jump ahead of the smock and coarse shirt of his peasant forebears and by comparison most American males are in the well-dressed class."

The importance of all the figure extremeties in fall fashion —head, neck, legs, feet, hands, wrists—gives new importance to rings and bracelets. The favored look: heirloom. The heirloom look shows in jewelry at all price levels.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

One Woman's Secret!

DEAR ABBY: I, for one, agree with you 100 per cent when you say that a husband and wife should not tell everything just to clear their own consciences. Firt of all, it does not make the sin any less, so why hurt someone by confessing? A few years ago I became a restless housewife, and thought an affair with another man was the answer to everything. So after becoming involved, I became pregnant. That woke me up and I broke off with him without telling him why. Instead, I vowed to be a better wife and mother, and I worked toward that end and prayed daily for forgiveness. We now have a little daughter. My husband worships the ground she walks on, and she idolizes him. We have other children, but there seems to be a closeness between this little girl and her "Daddy" that does not exist between any of the others. So why break his heart by telling him that she is not his child? This secret is between God and me, and it will always be that way. —COULD NEVER TELL

DEAR ABBY: Of all the despicable people I will ever have to contend with, deliver me from the "kiss and tell" hypocrite. Confessions to clear the conscience? Baloney! Most confessions are motivated by a wilful desire to injure an innocent party, guilt transference, and the wish to boast.

Confession to God is good. Likewise, confesion to a clergyman. Even to the bartender or the barber. But never to one who will be hurt to hear it.

To have an affair is one thing. It is wrong, to be sure. But it is a human weakness and the flesh is weak. But to inflict pain on an innocent person, needlesly, is quite another. Christ has been known to forgive the adulterer. ("Go forth, and sin no more.") But Christ had no good message for the hypocrite.

Who am I? I'm the guy who once confessed to his wife his infidelity. —GUILTY

DEAR ABBY: Re-confessing infidelity to one's mate: I agree with you wholeheartedly, Abby. It has been said, "The truth shall set you free." Rubbish! The truth has enslaved me. I would give everything I own never to have heard my wife's "confession." Sign me. —A MAN IN PASADENA

DEAR ABBY: So now you are giving spiritual advice? Who are you to say that a husband and wife should not confess the sin of unfaithfulness to one another? When one has broken his marriage vows, the only way to wipe the slate clean is to make a full confession to the spouse and ask forgiveness from the wronged one. If my mate has sinned against ME, it is to ME that he should confes, and it is MY forgivenes he needs in order to cleanse his soul. I think you should print a retraction, Abby. Many people read your advice and take you seriously. —"SAVED" IN JOPLIN

DEAR SAVED: I still believe that a confession that will hurt an innocent party should be withheld. There are better ways to make restitution. Prayer, keeping a silent vow never to repeat the act, a special measure of kindness and consideration. The punishment is greater when the guilt is born in silence by the guilty one. There is nothing noble about cleansing one's conscience in the tears of another.

Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Armed Forces News

By STEVE TILLMAN

WASHINGTON (Special to the Gazette Telegraph) — The next Congress will consider one of the most meaningful recommendations for a pay increase of the Armed Services to be sent to the Hill in many a year. The theme will be comparability with the gains made in recent years by the Civil Service and other federal employes. To match this level a substantial pay increase will be necessary.

The 1965 pay program is expected to call for a new hazardous duty pay for deck crews aboard aircraft carriers and for physicians. There will also be a forceful approach for new family housing units.

Due to the present law governing retired pay increases it is not expected that the Department of Defense will ask specifically for such an increase. Notwithstanding, measures are expected to be introduced in the new Congress to give a five per cent increase to all retirees. Advance word is that such an increase will not meet with any particular opposition from the Defense Department.

The next Congress will consider proposals to reduce the 26 day annual leave program of federal employes to approximately 20 days. Back of the proposal will be an argument that if such is approved the number of employes could be reduced by 6 to 7 per cent.

The Air Force Association launched a real thunder bolt at Pentagon officials about the new Standards of Conduct directive.

A protest, one of several received from associations, says "that the directive points the finger of suspicion at all, rather than wielding the axe on the necks of a relative few reputed miscreants." The association compared the situation to that of a "commander who restricts his entire outfit to punish one man who goes AWOL."

The Pentagon has no comment with regard to the status of Air Force Reserve Colonel Walter Jenkins. They will not comment on the question of (a) will he be asked to resign, and, (B) will he be dropped, and if so, under what type of discharge.

If he resigns he will not lose his Reserve pension, estimated to be about $250 a month when he is 60, but if his commission is revoked for cause, the question of the pension status might have to go to the courts for adjudication. It has been announced officially that he will not lose his Civil Service retirement annuity.

In 1965 Pentagon civilian officials, if they are the same ones as are now in office, may take advantage of the Jenkins incident to reorganize the handling of the Reserve school units on the Hill. Up to now it has been too hot a subject, in the words of one official, to handle.

Lead article in the October issue of the Air Force magazine, published by the Air Force Association, titled "Airpower Holds the Front," discusses Gen. Maxwell Taylor and Vietnam. It should be must reading for all officers but may have a tendency to cause Army officers to grit their teeth.

Chances are good that the Marine Corps will get an increase in strength beyond the present authorized 190,000 in the next budget. If Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Jr., is the spokesman for the 1965 pay task force, as many here would like to see, it will enhance the possibility of not only Congress approving a pay increase but the strength of the Marine Corps as well. This is the view held by informed congressional observers.

While many speak against the efficient capability of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, others refer to him as one of the ablest secretaries ever to serve with the Armed Forces.

The 8th Armored Division Association apparently so believes for it has presented Secretary McNamara with its citation saying that he is the American "who, during the past year, contributed the most toward the cause of peace." That recognition is going to be pretty difficult to downgrade.

The Army and the Air Force will use new digit APO numbers for all addresses overseas effective Jan. 1, along the lines of the U.S. Post Office Zip Code. No Pentagon word is forthcoming as to the course to be taken by the Navy.

'Labor of Love' Is Given to Lady Bird

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson is taking home with her a "labor of love gift" from a Midland, Tex., carpenter for the President.

It's a two-foot high hand-carved figure of a man on horseback, made of ponderosa pine and supposed to be the President riding a fine working horse.

It was given to the First Lady on her campaign visit here Monday. Perry B. Holley, who made it, said he has admired Johnson since the depression days when LBJ was Texas director of the National Youth Administration.

Keating Faces Close Race With Kennedy

By JOHN MORGANTHALER

NEW YORK (AP) — The Keating-Kennedy Senate race has many New York voters in a quandry. They like them both.

But on Nov. 3 they must retire Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, 64, after 18 years in Congress, or defeat Democrat-Liberal Robert F. Kennedy, 38, brother and adviser to the late president, who is making his first try at elective office.

Both camps say the race is close. The New York Daily News poll shows Kennedy well ahead.

If the vote is close, New Yorkers who dislike both Keating and Kennedy as "too liberal" may decide their fate.

They can vote for Conservative Henry Paolucci, 43, the only candidate in the Senate race who supports Republican Barry Goldwater for president. The News poll shows Paolucci with a little more than 2 per cent of the vote.

Kennedy is for President Johnson. Keating is not supporting Goldwater or Johnson, and recently said he is not going to disclose how he'll vote.

With Johnson leading Goldwater 3-1 in the News poll, the Keating-Kennedy race has taken center stage in New York.

Both men are personable, witty, intelligent and informed. They have campaigned hard since Labor Day, often working more than 15 hours a day. Both are spending lavishly, probably more than $1.5 million each.

For weeks they hardly mentioned each other, but recently the campaign turned vitriolic.

Keating, who is seeking a second term in the Senate, says Kennedy has falsified his voting record, making it appear that he opposed housing, education, medicare and the minimum wage, when in fact he worked for all of them.

Kennedy says Keating has called him, in effect, pro-Nazi, anti-Italian and anti-Negro.

Keating points with pride to his role in "alerting the nation" to the Cuban missile buildup. Kennedy, who was attorney general at the time, says Keating's part didn't help the United States or its interests.

They once seemed to have agreed on a television debate, but negotiations between aides broke down in a welter of charges and counter-charges about the format.

Kennedy continues to draw big, enthusiastic crowds.

The usual scene on the Kennedy tour is the candidate, looking frail and older than his pictures, standing on an auto roof or a platform, surrounded by thousands of smiling people who seem to want just to touch him.

Often there are tears in the eyes of older people. Teen-age girls scream.

Kennedy, flashing a shy smile, talks of wanting to "keep on with what we started three and a half years ago" — meaning his brother's New Frontier.

Keating has a shock of white hair, and it blows in the breeze. His face is deeply tanned, and he looks younger than his pictures.

("Meet the United States senator who looks like a United States senator," says the aide with a bullhorn who is rounding up a crowd.)

The decorum of the crowd allows Keating to shake more hands. "Nice to see you," he says, smiling.

In his speeches, he calls Kennedy an outsider — he never says "carpetbagger" — and says Kennedy wants to use New York as a political power base and is the candidate of Democratic bosses.

Candidate Evans Has Busy Day in Springs Sunday

Frank Evans, Democratic candidate for Congress, climaxed a busy day of campaigning in Colorado Springs with talks to two church groups. He spoke at the Stratmoor Hills Methodist Church and the Fountain Methodist Church.

Evans explained the legal and moral issues involved in the present controversy over prayer in schools. He stated that the biggest problem with having an official prayer in public schools was determining just who would decide what particular prayer to use.

He said that one of the most rewarding courses he had in college was a course in comparative religions because it taught him tolerance for other faiths, but he stated that prayer is such a personal matter that it belongs mainly in the home and in the church.

Evans spoke to the church groups as part of a discussion series which Evans' Republican opponent, J. Edgar Chenoweth, will address next week.

Evans said his position on the "Prayer" Amendment is different from Chenoweth's. He stated that he opposes compulsory prayers for moral and legal reasons. "Our founding fathers settled this question when they wrote the Constitution," said Evans, "because they wanted to keep the government from interfering with church affairs."

Earlier in the day Evans spoke at a coffee at the home of Ted King in Security. He spoke to a meeting of the Federated Womens Clubs at Peoples Methodist Church and later at a coffee at the home of Wilbur Wright at 1531 Wood Avenue.

Evans, a state legislator and minority whip of the State House of Representatives, emphasized his support of the Johnson Administration's programs which are aimed at opening the doors of opportunity for those at the bottom of the economic totem pole.

At both churches Evans stated that, if America wants to remain the greatest free enterprise nation in the world, it will have to provide opportunities whereby everyone can advance according to his initiative and his ability.

He stated that this can be done through such programs as the Economic Opportunities Act, the Area Redevelopment Act, the Medical Student Scholarship Loan program and the Student Loan program. He noted that Chenoweth had voted no on all these bills.

"Those who raise the spectre of federal control of our schools aren't acquainted with the 'Impacted Areas' act which has been in operation for a number of years and which financially assists some public schools without any federal control at all," said Evans.

Evans campaigned through Eastern Colorado by helicopter last Friday and led a motor caravan through the Arkansas Valley Saturday.

He stated that in the final days of the campaign when the undecided voters make up their minds, they will decide on the basis of differences between the Democratic Party and Senator Goldwater and not on the basis of personal attacks.

CIG Again Top Giver in UF Fund Drive

It sounded like the report from an entire campaign division when Robert Cowan of Colorado Interstate Gas Co., announced today that his company had raised $20,545 in the current drive for the Pikes Peak United Fund. Cowan pointed out that Colorado Interstate Gas Co., gave almost one tenth of the huge Business and Industry Division quota.

The report brought the campaign to $423,860 or 87 per cent of the goal and lighted one more light on the Mount Manitou campaign indicator which is scheduled to go off Friday, signaling the end of the campaign.

Clean-up work in the drive to raise $484,800 will continue until all contacts have been made and the goal is reached, according to William Pfeiffer of Harris Upham Co., campaign chairman.

Cowan reported that over 90 per cent of the employees at Colorado Interstate Gas Co., took advantage of the payroll deduction plan offered by the management. Because of their generosity, the average gift for all employees of the firm stands at $36.00. This and the generous corporation gift places Colorado Interstate Gas Co., at the top in giving where it has stood since the United Fund was organized in 1961.

Cowan also reported that seven departments within the company deserve special recognition for exceeding the quotas assigned in the company campaign. These were: area development, 115.2 per cent; employee relations, 100.4 per cent; production, 109.6 per cent; gas control, 106.5 per cent; ad valorum tax, 103.7 per cent and dispatching, 100 per cent. He added that a number of employees who were on vacation during the campaign period will be contacted and their contributions will be added to the reported total at a later date.

Division by division reports are: Business and Industry, Buz Rieger, chairman, $205,973. 90 per cent of quota; Service Club, Howard Cloud, chairman, $25,373. 94 per cent; Commercial Lee Baker, chairman, $18,740. 85 per cent; Special Gifts, Mrs. Harrie Hart, chairman, $27,603. 79 per cent; Neighborhood Mrs. Thomas Fischer, chairman, $16,873. 55 per cent; Professional, Broun Mavall, chairman, $15,962. 69 per cent; Public Service $40,930. 85 per cent. The three military installations reported a combined $72,406 with both Ent and the Air Force Academy complete and well ahead of last year.

Tools worth $480 Stolen in Area

Tools valued at more than $480 have been stolen from two houses being built by the Palmer Construction Co., a sheriff's office report said Monday.

Both houses, according to Eddie Palmer, were entered by someone twisting the doorknobs off.

A saw worth $160 and a joiner wotht $50 were taken from a house on Woodcrest Drive, and a saw worth $145 plus assorted tools valued at $132.95 were tanen from a house on Hungate Road.

Palmer also said the person or persons turned on a water tap in the basement of the Woodcrest Drive house, allowing some five inches of water to run in the area. He estimated the damage to the basement and its walls at $204.

Palmer told deputies the two incidents took place the night of Oct. 21.

Moore Urges Constructive Comments of Opera Here

EDITOR'S NOTE — Dick Moore, the Gazette Telegraph business editor, is also an opera buff of considerable experience. Himself a former musician, he also knows the scores of famous operas intimately, and during a tour of Italy, has received an intimate glimpse into numerous opera productions and also into vocal teaching methods. We asked Mr. Moore to write an extra review of the production of the opera Faust in Colorado Springs, and in the following review, he presents his opinion of the attitudes which may be assumed in the encouragement of opera in Colorado Springs. — John Fetler, Arts Critic.

By DICK MOORE

The Colorado Springs Opera Association has launched its 1964-65 season with a presentation of Faust; an opera synonymous with upcoming Halloween in that it deals with demons, necromancy and spirits of the departed.

A large, appreciative Saturday night audience at Wasson High Auditorium enjoyed the inspired music of Charles Gounod as it unfolded under the capable, interpretative direction of Dr. J. Julius Baird.

Maestro Baird again demonstrated, as he has through many years and many times in the past, his remarkable facility for tapping virgin reservoirs of artistic abilities contained in the hearts and souls of his musicians.

Baird, with firm yet ingenius precision, drew from his orches- brought to life the musical tra an inspirational spark that greatness of the opera's long-dead composer.

The first page of Faust is one of the most outstanding in the score. Here we have Gounod the stern, the one knew Bach and he shows it. Saturday night we had Baird, the man who knows Gounod, his style of fugue, and scholastic procedure.

The audience found all in its right place; and, stirred, met the struggle of the old philosopher Faust, against the unavoidable truths (old age, death and human inibality to know all) settled into their seats, entering into the spirit of the opera as the curtain rose.

The spirit of this audience is another thing this writer finds to applaud. Though punctuated by late comers and hampered by an apparent ignorance of the musical score, (evidenced by applause at improper times) the enthusiasm of the group is not to be denied.

Such enthusiasm can be interperted not only as an expressed desire to continued exposure to cultural arts, but a whole hearted recognition as well as appreciation for individuals who devoted talents and uncounted hours of personal time to a project devoid of monetary profit.

In the face of such spontaneous reaction, and in view of the fact that our opera singers are not professionals per se, what part does a self-styled critic play in such an overall picture? The answer is an unequivocally "none".

This is not to deny that qualified critics are vital to the protection of would - be audiences of professional performances. Such artists advertise perfection of dramatics (vocal or otherwise) by their very participation in commercial extravanganzas. Categorically, such artists are craftsmen like those in other commercial fields and if they fail in performance, efficiency must be called to task for discrepancies.

Even in this field professional critics too often base critiques on personal egotism and, sadly to say, nepotism.

Considering the world of professional criticism, does this allow room for the critic (qualified or otherwise) to take to task our opera association in its labor of love? I think not.

Let us instead build up the efforts of these generous people who are willing to give of thir talents and time to furtherance of a better cultural community.

Let us not promote self-styled critics who mentally compare our community singers to golden voices of professionals heard on radio, television, or whose voices are easily obtainable on records and tape.

Let us constructively comment rather than criticize, negatively and let such comments be made with the intntion of improving rather than tearing down.

Above all, let us get behind our opera association. Let us sing the praises of our costume designers and those in charge of the current Faust production stage sets, and also the overall efforts of those responsible for the entire production.

This writer has had occasions of hearing the opera Faust sung many times both in the United States and abroad. On one occasion the maestro of a Faust presentation in Milano, Italy said: "Well, it's wartime you know. Maybe our performance is not the best but we are trying to keep the spirit of great music alive."

And in this same spirit let us salute our own opera association for a fine effort.

Dog Repellent Effective PO Carriers Find

Mail carriers are finding the new dog repellent very effective after a week of use, Robert H. Wardwell, postmaster, reports.

"The carriers are advised to use the aerosol spray discriminately," Wardwell said, "but several men have had to use it and report that it was very successful."

Mail carriers in the Colorado Springs area began carrying the repellent October 20. It contains 15 per cent oleoresin capsicum (extract of cayenne pepper) and 85 per cent mineral oil. It is effective up to 12 feet and produces discomfort to the eyes, mouth or nose of the animal for about 15 minutes. It leaves a yellowish coloration on the animal's hair which is removable by washing.

Before being put into normal use, the repellent was examined by veterinarians who found it not only safe and effective, but described it as "a very humane method of controlling animals."

"Dog bites, of course," Wardwell said, "are one of the main hazards of being a mail carrier. Something about the uniform and satchel seem to annoy dogs. Postal employes sustain more than 7,000 injuries a year resulting in about $1 million in sick leave and medical expenses.

"Carriers who have used the repellent said that the dogs were definitely discouraged and that the spray sent most of them scurrying back to their porches.

"Of course we've had some calls. One woman said that if the repellent were used on her dog it would be. . .just too bad. I tried to expalin that it was only for the protection of the carriers.

"We do have a city ordinance against allowing dogs to run loose, however, many owners dieregard it entirely."

Trash Hauling Complaint Dismissed by City Judge

A complaint by Colorado Springs Sanitation Inspector O. W. Mathews against Susie Perkins, of 332 S. Conejos St., was dismissed by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher Monday, when Mathews admitted that exceptions to the ordnance of hauling trash in authorized equipment had been made in the past.

Mrs. Perkins was charged with hauling trash in unauthorized equipment. Mathews testified that at a meeting of license trash haulers in the city approximately one year ago, he gave permission for unlicensed trucks to pick up carboard and wood.

Mrs. Perkins, owner of Susie Perkins Ash and Trash, said she had been picking up trash in the unauthorized vehicle "only in the 400 block of W. Fontanero St." Mathews said he spoke to Mrs. Perkins several times in the last year, but that he had not taken any action until Oct. 2.

Springs Landlocked Navy Is Observing 'Navy Day'

Today, Navy men and women throughout the world have one thing in common . . .whether they are aboard a nuclear powered submarine in the Arctic Circle, aboard a carrier or cruiser operating with the fast attack forces of the U. S. Sixth and Seventh Fleets, on a destroyer patrolling the Gulf of Tonkin, or flying in supersonic fighters, or stationed 800 miles from the nearest Fleet in the land-locked State of Colorado. . .for today is Navy Day.

The U. S. Navy man, "first element of sea power," is the theme selected by Navy officials to be used in conjunction with Navy Day 1964.

Oct. 27 has two special meanings for American Navy men throughout the world. It is Navy Day and the birthday of President Theodore Roosvelt.

A firm believer in the need for a strong Navy, Thodore Roosevelt fought to make it powerful while he was President. He sent the "Great White Fleet" around the world mainly as a diplomatic maneuver, but it also helped him to get new funds and support for the Navy.

"Speak softly, but carry a big stick," Teddy said. Historians interpret his utilization of the Navy as his big stick.

Called the "Father of the Modern American Navy" for the results he obtained, he was later honored by the Navy and Congress when his birthday was selected as Navy Day.

In 1907 America showed off its seapower when 16 coal-burning battleships of the Great White Fleet sailed around the world.

In 1964 America showed off its sea power when the nuclear powered task force, consisting of the carrier Enterprise, cruiser Long Beach, and the destroyer, leader Bainbridge, sailed around the world.

Just as in 1907, the world cruise of the nuclear task force has a mission. The Great White Fleet proved that the U. S. Navy could operate anywhere. The nuclear powered warships of today showed that they could operate independent of support ships anywhere . . .a feat impractical for conventionally powered ships.

Equally important, both fleets made port-of-calls on their cruises to enhance the continuing friendship between this Nation and the people of the world and to show them the Navy's power for peace.

Navy Day throughout Colorado and Colorado Springs has been jointly proclaimed by Governor John Love and Mayor Harry Hoth. In the Navy Day decree, they emphasized that the Navy and Marine Corps are making great contributions to the security of our Nation and free men everywhere.

Tradition calls for cake cutting ceremonies on this day for Navy and Marine Corps units. This tradition will be observed at the Navy Relief Ball, Saturday evening, at the Broadmoor International Center. The custom calls for the youngest sailor to reciev the first piece of cake from the most senior officer present.

Th club is cuerrntly planning a field trip to the Rand Corporation in Los Angeles.

Weltech Electronics Will Open School in Springs

Weltech Electronic, in cooperation with local electronic industries, the Colorado Department of Employment, and other city groups recently announced they will open a special school in the near future in Colorado Springs to search out and train men to be technicians in the electronics industry.

Two representatives of Weltech Electronics, Larry Lemke and Ron Brizzee, have been in the Colorado Springs area for the past four weeks conducting an investigation to determine whether or not the area needs such a school. On the basis of their investigation, they announced that plans are for the school to be opened "around the first of December."

They have 20 men now who are now conducting interviews at the employment office in Colorado Springs to locate 40 more, for a beginning class of 60.

Weltech Electronics is based in Salt Lake City, and they train and graduate approximately 1,000 men a year as electronics technicians. The course involved is of 12 months duration, consisting of five hours a day, five days a week. At the end of that time, the graduate is a technician in electronics with the equivalant of four years of College training in electronics.

Weltech Electronics offers only courses in electronics, so that at the end of the one year training period, the student has 1500 hours of training, specifically in electronics, according to Lemke.

Lemke said that if a need in the area continues to exist, the school will be expanded, but that at this time plans are to keep it at "about 60 students."

Some of the equipment to be used at the school is being contributed by local companies, but some of the more sophisticated electronic equipment will be shipped in from Salt Lake City, Brizzee said.

In order to qualify for admission to the school, a person willl have to pass a series of tests, including an aptitude test, an I. Q test, and a personality test. Brizzee said that approximately 26 hours are spent on each individual in consultation and testing to determine whether or not he qualifies.

Last year Weltech Electronics hosted the Western Manpower and Utilization Conference, under the auspices of the Executive Office of the Presidnt of the United States, Office of Emergency Planning.

Applications for entrance are open to anyone, regardless of age or education, Brizzee said. He added that if a person qualifies, he pays only for the amount of training he undergoes. He said that if a student finds it necessary to work in order to be able to attend school, the student employment service of the college will assist the individual, and also his wife (if he is married) to find employment sufficient to enable him to pay the costs of living and training.

After graduation the Weltech College acts as the graduate's agent in placing him in contact with prospective employers. Brizzee emphasized that although the College will not guarantee him a job after graduation, it will assist him in finding one.

Registration Date Changed for Course

Registration for a special course of study for elementary and secondary school teachers will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday and not Thurdsay as previously reported.

The course is being offered by the College of Greeley. Registration and the first class session will be held at the Adult Education Building, 406 N. Weber St.

Carson Plans New Features For Retirement Ceremony

Several new features will be incorporated into the retirement ceremonies Friday, at Ft Carson.

Marching in the retreat parade will be a composite battalion commanded by Lt. Col Harold K. Roach, Assistant Chief of Staff for operations. It will include one infantry company from the 3d Brigade, one artillery battery from 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) Artillery, one company from Support Command, one tank company from 77th Armor, and Ft-Carson's new Honor Guard. Officers of the division operations section will be the staff for the parade.

The Canadian national anthem, in honor of Air Marshal C. R. Dunlap of North American Air Defense Command, will be played along with the Star Spangled Banner. The flags of the 50 states will fly and a 15-gun salute will be fired.

Also taking part in the retreat parade will be the horse-mounted color guard of the 4th Squadron, 12th Cavalry, wearing uniforms of frontier days.

In the field south of the parade area, static displays will be set up by the 5th Medical Battalion and the 7th Engineer Battalion.

The medics will show a full field unit, including the admission and disposition section, a laboratory section, dental section, surgery section, pre-operation section, post-operation section, two ward tents and an ambulance.

Engineers will have a pioneer tool set, an electric tool set, a tactical wire, mine and mine detector equipment, reconnaissance boat, assault boat, water purification equipment, bridge section, a tank retriever and a scoop loader.

The retreat parade for this occasion will begin at 4:25 p.m. Usual hour is 4:55 p.m.

U. S. to Spend $36 Billion on R&D by 1974

By 1974, the U. S. will spend $36 billion on research and development, nearly double this year's $18.7 billion.

In a special report on research and development, McGraw-Hill publications' Economics Department notes that R & D as an industry is now larger than such industries as aircraft, instruments or paper, if their sales are used as a measure of size.

It is only since World War II that R & D has become an organized activity

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Progress and Beauty

What does progress mean? The dictionary is not too helpful.

It says "a proceeding to a further or higher stage, or through successively; advancement in general; growth or development, continuous improvement; the development of an individual or group in a direction considered as beneficial and to a degree greater than that yet attained."

What is ugliness? Again we get only partial illumination from the word guide. "Repulsive or displeasing in appearance; morally revolting, of a troublesome nature; threatening disadvantage or danger; base, heinous, vile; surly; spiteful."

Lorraine Burgess, in her letter to the editor, states that we equate progress with ugliness. The statement is not justified. We make no such equation nor could we do so rationally in view of the accepted meanings of the words.

We are not unfamiliar with economic reality, however, and the fact is that economic progress is invariably a disturbing factor to those who are opposed to it. Many a town in Europe has given up virtually all hope of economic progress in order to retain its picturesque charm, its romantic traditions, its spectacular natural wonders or some other real or fancied item of beauty.

The populations in these places are not beautiful. It may be an item of intense interest to tourists to see peasants toiling in the fields at back-breaking labor, maintaining their old-world traditions in order to stay alive. But a few modern machines in the fields, belching out smoke, but turning out food production, would improve the lot of these human beings immeasurably. Also, the necessary factories to produce these machines might create some open pit mines, and some more smoke. But everyone in the world would benefit, except the tourist who is looking for the quaint, the bizarre, the unusual, the antique.

As a matter of fact, American taxpayers are being compelled through taxation to provide money for these same peasants. We do not consider a tax form, even the ubiquitious Form 1040, an item of beauty or one of progress, either.

And the fact is, uncomfortable though it may be, that we cannot have our cake and eat it, too. So the people in Colorado Springs will have to decide whether they wish this community to retain its quaint charm of the 19th century, or to join hands in progress, in freedom and in free enterprise, so that we may all live better and more complete lives.

The difficulty between Mrs. Burgess and ourselves, as we see it, is that she is concerned only with one kind of beauty. . . the physical, the material. . . that which meets the eye. We are concerned with the beauty of spirit that can come when people are gainfully employed; when they are paying their own bills; when they are free and independent, beholden to none and not taxed into frantic frustration by repeated calls to government to regulate everyone's lives and everyone's property.

Curiously, the dictionary does give us a small boost here by pointing out that ugliness is that which is morally revolting and not merely something that is displeasing in appearance. It goes on to equate ugliness with anything threatening disadvantage or danger, with things that are base, heinous, vile, surly or spiteful.

And we quite agree. For ugliness is a condition far more deeply rooted than a gravel pit or a lack of paint, or a line of washing. It is like a canker, gnawing at a person's innards, causing him to seek to inflict his views on others by force, by compulsively seized wealth, by any means at all.

Yes, indeed, ugliness has been with us a long time in Colorado Springs. It is the ugliness of agitation to deprive people of their rights in property. It is the ugliness of pressure groups, organized to inflict others with their views. It is the ugliness of growing political pressure, fiscal irresponsibility, mounting debt, unemployment and vast uncertainty and confusion as to what the future may hold.

If smoke and vapor are ugly, then what would you do with the city utilities plants, both north and south, which send pillars of vapor into our cobalt sky? If smoke and vapor are ugly, what of the chimneys putting up smoke on cold days?

If advertising signs are ugly, then think of the beauty of Moscow and other Russian cities where such signs are nonexistent.

Without government regulations most homes have converted from coal to gas because of advancements made by private enterprise. Private enterprise seeks to provide what people want and experience shows that it satisfies wants to a much greater extent than government (or government - controlled) enterprise. In private enterprise the customer is the boss, not some politically selected bureaucrat. When customers prefer items produced in smokeless plants and private enterprise is able to produce in smokeless plants, then Mrs. Burgess can have her desires in this respect satisfied without resorting to the ugliness of the brute force which is back of every government action. We believe that the ugliness of the brute force inherent in every government regulation is a much greater danger to the future of our city, state and nation than the smoke which is so distasteful to Mrs. Burgess.

Beauty is subjective. Each person has his own ideas of the beautiful, the well - formed, the pleasing. Should we pass a law to compel everyone to accept one person's standard of beauty? If so, then a law should follow to compel all to accept another person's idea of an attractive religion.

Progress and the spiritual beauty of freedom do go hand in hand. Ugliness and repression, compulsion, high taxes, and regimented lives seem to fit together in our lexicon.

The Political Plague

There's a new book which is landing on the shelves of book dealers just in time for the fall elections which is going to make a sound considerably louder than a thud. George P. Loweke has done us all a favor by putting out an opus on politicking which he is calling, "The Political Plague in America." Those who have been viewing the quadrennial delinquency with mounting dismay will find Loweke's offering exactly what they've always wanted.

"The Political Plague in America" doesn't confine itself to party politics. Although there is a bit more support of Hamiltonian theories than we personally admire, there is no malady, major or minor, arising from the concept that might makes right, which escapes the attention of the author. In the manner of a marksman, Loweke parades the facts and shoots them down in as fancy a display of verbal gunplay as it has ever been our pleasure to read. As a matter of fact, this book reads like one long speech, so well does it run together.

This is a handbook for anti-politicians. It points out at the beginning that. . ."something beyond laws will be required to stay our mounting distress, and it must come from the people, not from government." And then it goes on to tell you why, on page after page which will have you in tears or in a temper depending on your mood.

This is not a tirade against communism. Nor does it attack personalities, although, admittedly, there are quite a few names mentioned wherein the bearers come out second best. This book simply catalogues the folly of confiding power into the hands of men and reveals with stunning candor the devastating result.

Specifically, "The Political Plague in America" is evidence. It is not an argument, a plea, an endorsement. It is a listing of grievances, running for five hundred and fifty pages, put together in readable and exciting style.

If you've ever been in a mood to "cuss out" some of the things a politician has done, you'll want this book as a handy reference work to make certain that your remarks are cogent. This is clearly a guide for the disenchanted, leading them out of the maze of double dealing and red tape that is politics, back to a land where some segment of reason may remain.

Strongly recommended.

UGLINESS

To the Editor:

Ugliness is no longer a threat to our community, it is a reality. When it is equated with progress by persons in our "fair" city in positions as important as yours, it becomes increasingly difficult to reverse this unfortunate trend.

Gravel scars on our mountainside and spewing chimneys in hot-mix plants are not only symbols of men working, but of humans defacing and polluting this once fair land of ours.

Free enterprise is great as long as it does not intrude upon the rights of others, but when it subtracts from the great heritage of the people it must be curbed. Some say, "Aha, now the government will step in." I say, "Aha, it should." The government is the people, and this is their instrument of protest.

When free enterprise denudes a forest or makes slums of a city, the people demand laws on reforestation and urban renewal. When free enterprise becomes selfish enterprise its claim of "progress" is subject to scrutiny.

Not always is aggressive enterprise the reason for blight; sometimes simple thoughtlessness is the culprit. Sometimes our antagonist is that great American trait, the competitive spirit. Signs grow larger and taller, fluorescent pennants flap wilder and thicker on service stations and on real estate offerings. Ugliness of this sort is often justified in the minds of the offenders by the knowledge that their competitors started the trend.

One solution to such offenses is restrictive ordinances which pare down the activities of a whole group or an entire industry simultaneously, not just a few of the current offenders.

The sign industry people are currently bemoaning a pending ordinance which would limit the size and height of their products along our controlled access highways. They protest that such an ordinance would jeopardize their business and affect their gross profit. It is also likely that their industry's products, left unrestricted, would jeopardize the whole community.

Most Colorado Springs citizens chose to live here because it was a beautiful city, and most citizens expect that it will remain so. Expectations are not enough. To keep our city beautiful takes concern and concerted effort. Let us form a "special interest" group of our own, one which strives to preserve the special beauties with which our community was endowed and which it is now in danger of losing.

COLORADO HIGHWAYS

To the Editor:

Just a word of greeting to our Hard Rock Poet whose column I always enjoy. Not too long ago I read the column telling of Redstone and the castle there. About two years ago Mrs. Selden and I drove over Kebler Pass (in the fall) and it was gorgeous. We turned north at the new Paonia Dam, following over the new road (?) behind an earth - mover spreading about eight inches of rock for the subgrade or foundation. In time we hit the old road, narrow and muddy, and soon came to the oblique right-hand turn onto the McClure Pass road. Two backups and spinning of the steering wheel and we made it, only to find more and deeper mud than previously encountered. We had "twin-traction" and mud and snow tires and figured we could make it, which we did. The last two or three miles up (out of seven) were fairly solid going, and the three miles down was coarse gravel, sometimes rocky but quite okay even in a light rain again falling. When we got to Redstone we found blacktopping had been going on for what looked like a four - lane highway, although too new (not quite finished) for the striping that would tell the story.

We wondered why all this on practically a dead-end road? Who had the pull with the state highway department? Was the dude ranch a blind for Denver gamblers? "What gives?" And I'm still wondering.

But what I wanted to add to your story: Last year, I understand, the north side of McClure Pass was worked over and blacktopped and this year they have been re-aligning the south side (toning down grades and easing curves) preparatory to black-topping. When this is completed it will make one more circle trip for visitors, as well as natives, to enjoy. This gets to the point I would like to make. We should open up these "impassable" passes and make more circle trips to keep our visitors here longer, rather than concentrate exclusively on these expressways which merely speed our visitors through and OUT of our state. There is Schofield, and Mosca passes for instance, and no doubt you, Mr. Porter, know of many others, which if opened up to more than jeep travel would keep our visitors "driving around in circles" instead of have to backtrack so much to see the many wonders and beauties of our great State of Colorado.

TOO DUMB?

To the Editor:

When President Johnson looks over a group of people he apparently has the thought that these poor dumb souls will starve to death if we don't manage their money for them. The proof of this is illustrated clearly when he says to the farmer that if we stop controlling farm prices most of you will go broke. His actions with the people's Congress further indicates this. Most of the bills that he rammed down the throats of the people's congress during his short (thank God) tenure of office had been previously defeated by the congress which indicates that the people were against these laws. His attitude was that only he knows what's best for the people. How dare they think for themselves!

When Senator Goldwater looks over his crowds he doesn't have this superiority complex that only he is intelligent. He feels that he is one of them and by this association feels insulted, with the rest of the people, when he realizes that our present administration considers that they are too dumb to think for themselves. He has faith in America's ideals and the people of this great nation. This election will prove one of them right. A vote for Johnson is a vote that says people can't manage their affairs and please, Great White Father, think for them.

A vote for Senator Goldwater is a vote of indignation against the idea that only the President is smart enough to think. It is a vote that indicates that the American fighting spirit is still there, a vote of confidence in all Americans.

President Johnson says he is a friend of all the people. With friends like him, who needs enemies?

A CHOICE

To the Editor:

November 3, 1964 may well be one of the most important days in the history of our country. There is a clear-cut choice. The choice we are asked to make November 3 is not between Democrats and Republicans, but a choice between socialism or freedom; federal control or state and local control.

Which road do we want to take? The easy and wide road that promises all kinds of things that Good Ole Uncle Sam will do for us? The something - for-nothing sounds good but anything worthwhile must be paid for, and you and I are the ones paying the taxes.

Or, on the other hand, are we willing to do more for ourselves? The narrow road doesn't promise us an easy path to follow, but isn't something worthwhile, worth working for? Would not the Cuban people be willing to do most anything to regain their freedom? Let us not take our freedom for granted or we may have our children asking us why. Why didn't you do something when you still could have saved our freedom?

Let us not jump into the so-called "Great Society" without thought. Marx and Engels thought they were creating a "Great Society" but it has turned into a monster.

These are things we must think about before we vote this year.

THE CONSERVATIVE SOUTH

To the Editor:

During a recent trip in the Mississippi delta region I was impressed by the astounding growth of conservatism in the deep South. Taxi drivers, filling station operators, inn keepers, business and professional people all wanted to talk politics. Many confessed that before 1964 their interest in political affairs had been mild.

These people were aroused! They saw the socialist trend of the present administration nibbling away at their freedoms. The cotton grower saw his tenant farmer given two thirds of the soil bank check to one third for the owner when the best land use would have been government - forbidden timber growth. The New Orleans Cotton Exchange closed because there was no free market for cotton. Government subsidies had destroyed it to create a favorable climate for imported cotton. Cane fields lay fallow and sugar was being imported. Good schools for Negroes were being closed in favor of less satisfactory integrated facilities which neither whites or Negroes wanted.

Government occupation and enforcement of integration at gun point, as in Oxford, has the southerner boiling. His cars carry signs, "You are now in occupied Mississippi. Proceed with caution." He bitterly resents

Reliefers Object to 'Stooping'

By OSCAR COOLEY

After years of paying men not to work, California is having trouble getting them to work for pay. The story is told by David C. Smith in The Wall Street Journal of October 6.

County welfare directors in Los Angeles and Alameda counties are insisting that able-bodied relief recipients go out to the farms and help harvest the tomatoes and cauliflower, rather than loaf in town and live on the dole.

"Slave labor!" cry the reliefers. "We know our rights and we will fight for them." In today's welfare state, collecting relief is considered a "right."

The tempest was stirred up as a result of two legislative enactments. First, Congress voted to end, December 31, the system by which Mexican workers (braceros) are allowed to enter the United States each year to help harvest the crop, returning promptly when the job is done. Some 60,000 Mexicans have been coming each year under this program.

Whether their backs are more supple or their wills more amenable, it seems they do "stoop labor" such as picking vegetables more rapidly and efficiently than do residents of the United States. In fact, few of the latter will do it at all. But the AFL-CIO, ever ready to reduce the supply of labor and thus tighten their monopoly, demanded that the tomato - picking be preserved for the natives, and Congress submitted, even though the growers expressed a preference for the Mexicans, in fact were skeptical whether the crops could be grown without them.

Second, California like other states — obedient to Washington — has broadened the aid-to-dependent - children program to include, not just families whose heads were incapacitated or AWOL, but those whose bread winners were able and present but "unemployed." As a result, the cost of ADC in California, has risen from $189,000,000 to $224,000,000 a year. The authorities would hold it down by suggesting that the able-bodied fathers, as well as strapping sons who have dropped out of high school, substitute for the braceros.

In Alameda County (Oakland), the reliefers responded by setting up a "welfare rights organization," equipped with office and telephone. Joined by members of the "Congress of Racial Equality," they staged a 3-day demonstration, picketing with signs proclaiming "We know our rights and we will fight for them."

Their counterparts in Los Angeles County are being encouraged not only by labor unions but by an "Emergency Committee to Aid Farm Workers," consisting of assorted novelists, poets and do-gooders. The committee demands that farm workers be paid at least $1.50 an hour. At present the county officials insist that farmers must pay a $1.25 hourly minimum wage, which does not apply to farm workers, and provide transportation both ways between city and farm. The Los Angeles officials figure the county has 3,700 welfare clients who are able to work on farms. It remains to be seen if they are willing.

In Alameda County, some reliefers found they could collect more for not working than for working. According to Smith, a family of four on ADC can get $215 a month, while for putting in a 40-hour week on a farm the father could make only $182 a month.

Some complained, too, that when working on a farm they had no time or opportunity to get a more lucrative job.

When 60 aid applicants were told where they could get work picking cauliflower, "fewer than five" applied.

The California growers resent the congressional action to exclude the braceros, who do their work well, for fair wages. They are being excluded at the behest of people who are not willing to compete with men who work well for fair wages. In excluding them, Congress is aiding and abetting a monopoly.

One might ask, why have not the able-bodied reliefers of California been required long since to seek work on farms? The answer is, partly because the welfare officials have been lenient, partly because the farmers have not wanted them, preferring the Mexicans. Now, the growers' need for labor being great, they are undoubtedly pressuring the welfare officials to get tougher and send the reliefers out.

These events in California fully confirm the conclusions in my recently published book, "Paying Men NOT to Work." Work is a burden. When people are liberally paid while not working, they are much inclined not to work. Much unemployment is being generated by over - liberal unemployment compensation and relief payments.

The blame does not rest on the relief recipients alone. Primarily it rests on lax and indulgent welfare officials, and also upon state legislatures which have authorized the giving of liberal doles to able-bodied people.

Which Is the Real Front

By ROSALIE M. GORDON

The innocence, naivete, or as some less charitable souls call it, plain stupidity of supposedly intelligent but busy people seems to know no bounds. Recently, a gentleman named Arthur M. Larson made what he hoped would be a nation - shaking announcement — the formation of a new organization with the sweet-sounding name of National Council for Civic Responsibility. Mr. Larson, who now heads a sort of world-government unit at Duke University, for a while was one of the lesser leading lights of the Eisenhower administration which, together with his new organization's name, may have served to fool some of his new council members. But in his views, Mr. Larson belongs somewhere in the middle of the liberal-left. He now favors the Johnson - Humphrey ticket. He felt constrained to say that his new council was non - political, though its purpose is to oppose what he calls "radical reactionary organizations," so his news was greeted with a bit of ho-hum and the remark: "Still another anti-conservative outfit; what's the liberal - left so scared about?"

However, Mr. Larson's new outfit is spending more than half a million dollars on broadcasts aimed at a mythical set of so-called "fronts" for the Birch Society. The frightened Mr. Larson and his council seemingly include in these non - existent "fronts" everybody who is anti-communist, for the U.S. constitution and opposed to collectivism, socialism and statism in America. No one questions the new group's right to do this. But Mr. Larson's council contains a number of fairly distinguished names who perhaps are unaware of what they let themselves in for. A few, like Harold Stassen and Harry Ashmore, are the type of inveterate joiners who can be found anywhere except, God forbid, to the right of the New York Times. But others, like J. Lawton Collins, David Lilienthal, a few college presidents and businessmen, may be surprised to find they are innocently playing the game of the Reuther brothers and a private smear outfit which collects dossiers on everybody who does not follow the socialist-labor, ADA line to the letter. Several years ago the Reuthers cooked up a comprehensive blueprint for muzzling all conservatives and anti-communists in America. Shortly thereafter, an outfit called Group Research, Inc., began collecting smear dossiers on such individuals and groups. These were used by COPE, the Reuthers' left - wing political arm, to smear or stop conservative speakers around the country. But the Group Research dossiers weren't as effective as the left - wing smearers hoped, because it became known that the socialist - labor smear bund was behind them. They badly needed a shot of respectability. And now it comes out that Mr. Larson's new council will use Group Research in its campaign against conservatives and conservatism. Which raises the question, despite the innocence of Mr. Larson's council members and perhaps even of Mr. Larson himself: Who is fronting for whom?

The Local Scene

Extravagantly Beautiful

By RUFUS L. PORTER

A fellow stopped in to see me the other day. He is a newcomer here and has been reading my column. We talked for a couple of hours, our conversation covering a wide range of subjects. He had taken the tour I recommended to see the aspens at their best and he had waited at Summit on the Gold Camp Road until dusk when the lights of Colorado Springs were spread out far below.

"You were right," he said. "It is a grand sight and one my wife and I hope to see again many times. We are planning on moving into the area."

"We're certainly glad to welcome you," I said, "and I know you will find the people friendly and helpful. Colorado Springs is a wonderful town and it is full of excellent homes with many more in the surrounding suburbs. You can't go wrong in moving to the Springs."

"You are right about it being a friendly and a wonderful place," he said. "It reminds me of a beautiful and cultured lady. I have known her for a long time because we used to visit her every summer. We have watched her grow from young womanhood into a charming and sophisticated lady who more than fulfills the promise of her girlhood. Yes, she is a great lady. She has charm, beauty, grace, poise, culture and intelligence. But she has lately grown extravagant, as happens so many times with women of her type."

"A great lady, such as you describe, sometimes gets the idea that her wishes should be catered to," I said, "and that she is entitled to the finer things in life. But it is usually because her men folks have spoiled her. But Colorado Springs has always seemed sweet and unsophisticated to me. She reminds me of a charming lady, too. But I never thought of her as a demanding one."

"That's because you've lived around here for so many years. One seldom notices the changes that have come over his loved ones until they are pointed out by others who see them only occasionally and always in fresh perspective. You, living so close, may not have noticed it as yet. But you will soon. Colorado Springs, an elegant lady, has lately become extravagant and demanding. Her desires and ambitions to become even more beautiful have far outreached her income. Beauty she still has, but her charm is slipping. A woman of extravagance sacrifices charm for more material things. She often becomes a schemer, a conniver and a nagger, and sometimes bankrupts those who love her and support her."

"It's beginning to dawn on me," I said, "that instead of talking in riddles, as I at first supposed, you are making sense. You must be referring to the steady increase in taxes that have become an almost annual occurrence in the Springs. But that is due to her lusty growth, her development into the mature womanhood you seem to admire."

"Her rapid expansion has also brought a like expansion in the assessed valuation of property in her city limits, hasn't it?" he asked.

"Well, yes," I said, "an average of about 10 per cent a year."

"Plenty," he said, "to more than support her in the manner to which she was accustomed before she started having delusions of grandeur."

About then his wife reminded him that it was time to leave. He shook hands and said, "It's been nice meeting you, hope I run into you again sometime."

"That shouldn't be too difficult," I said, "if you move to the Springs."

"We had planned on moving to the Springs or to one of the beautiful new subdivisions," he said, "but we have decided against it since the city ordinance was passed adopting a two per cent sales tax. We took a long look at the various other taxes that have been increasing at an alarming rate, especially the school levies, and we figured the Springs was too extravagant a lady for our tastes."

"I'm certainly sorry to hear that you aren't going to settle in the area," I said.

"We expect to settle somewhere close," he said, "probably in one of the smaller towns or cities outside of El Paso County. There are some charming new housing developments in Teller and Fremont Counties we are thinking about. And then there's Douglas County, but I understand Denver is about to gobble it up. It looks like the mountains for us."

(cont. from preceding page) this federal force. So vigorously does he oppose these encroachments on his liberty that he is talking, persuading, arguing and fighting for the cause of freedom. For him, the two issues are freedom or socialist slavery to an all - powerful central government. The Republican cause is his. Barry Goldwater is his hero and savior. I believe there are more Goldwater bumper stickers visible than any place else in the nation.

The southerners blame no one but themselves for their plight. They accepted government subsidies; they did not resist government encroachment; they failed to oppose government domination soon or vigorously enough. They were lulled by the siren song of socialism — something for everyone — not awakening until too late to the realization the price was sacrifice of their freedoms.

The southerner believes the Johnson administration's goal is destruction of the South. It is common knowledge the bombing of the civil rights worker's home in Vicksburg was perpetrated by these workers who laughingly ran from their house just prior to the explosion. The southern code of honor would have made the shot-in-the-back murder of the three northern civil rights workers impossible to have been done by a southerner black or white. Substitution of northern FBI men in Vicksburg for southerners who understood the problems have convinced southerners that they are in truth invaded and by forces of evil hard to combat because of federal government protection.

The voter in the Mississippi delta is searching for a change. He is convinced that Goldwater is that honest, courageous champion for freedom. He pins all his hope on this man of exceptional stature who will be the miracle worker that will return to the states their right of self-determination and their ability to lift their heads once more with pride. There is no doubt that this part of the country has bolted the "solid South" and is working and praying for a return of states' rights and free enterprise through a Goldwater victory in November.

MISSILES IN CUBA

To the Editor:

The Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba is made up of such prominent Americans as Dr. Edward Teller, whose foresight gave the U.S. the H-bomb; Brig. Gen. S.L.A. Marshall, noted militaryanalyst; Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations and Joint Chiefs of Staff member during the 1962 missile crisis, and others. The group's executive secretary is Paul Bethel, who served with the U.S. embassy in Havana from 1958 to 1961.

Bethel reveals that the Soviet Union is introducing medium-range missiles into Cuba exactly as it did in the summer and early fall of 1962.

Says Bethel: "History is repeating itself. . .We have painstakingly checked eyewitnesses and contacts in the Caribbean. The missiles are there and we are sure the government intelligence agencies have the same information we do."

He also refers to a huge explosion in Pinar del Rio province last March in which missile components were blown over an area of more than 10 square miles. Cuban peasants were threatened with death if they spoke of the blast. "We checked this out five or six different ways over a period of weeks," Bethel says. "The reports all coincided. There can be no doubt that it occurred."

Bethel cited an eyewitness account relayed from Cuba by a doctor who saw a 26-wheel truck-trailer hauling long-range missile parts in Mantanzas province in August. "We have solid reports that missiles were introduced in Mantanzas in August," he says.

Now, if the above is true—and I see no reason to doubt the word of such an eminent group — isn't it imperative that we "look under the corner of the rug" and find out just who (and how trigger-happy) is the power behind those missiles which may be pointed our way?

BARGAINS

To the Editor:

"Food is a bargain? — takes only 19 cents after taxes from your dollar instead of 26 cents, 15 years ago." This may be true if your breadwinners were 25 to 35 years old 15 years ago, and actively engaged in temporary successful enterprise (I say successful enterprise as wages have increased more than seven cents on the dollar in that category).

Food is no bargain to people on fixed incomes such as pensions, social security and welfare. (Some will say on social security and welfare; it is all bargain to those who receive it.)

Food can't be a bargain to anyone as long as government controls keep growers, processors, wholesalers and retailers from honest competition which the governments have done directly and indirectly for years. Now, a newer innovation is telling growers to keep their produce off the markets to raise prices (this by government agencies as well as college-educated graduates. What a waste of education!)

Beef will no longer be as much of a bargain if cattlemen give in to government controls even further. We're lucky that they are tough and have initiative as the government imports beef to further depress markets — among other things.

In fact, there are no bargains and will be no bargains until government controls are done away with, and the people don't have to pay 60 per cent of their income to pay for taxes — and as usual, the only thing that keeps us from achieving success is the same formula for achieving bargains. Each individual must accept full personal responsibility for himself and for those he's responsible for (minor and infirm). A real smart quip today might be, "Who wants success or bargains or vice versa?"

VISION AND REALITY

To the Editor:

Some years ago after becoming self-responsible (even with socialist interference) a utopian city for the self-responsible appeared in a dream. After much pondering and talk with responsible people along with some who apparently desire to be self-reliant, it seems that this imaginary city could very well become a reality.

Yes, a city with all modern conveniences, law and order and without onerous tax. It can't be done?

Nothing has or will be done by those who can't. For those who can, vision becomes a reality. Anti socialists, any comment? Socialists, any criticism?

RED CENSORSHIP

To the Editor:

There is no communist leader who believes in the censorship of the communist system for himself.

The communist government takes away the rights of their people, the right of freedom of speech, the right of free worship and many others. But they use all of those rights for themselves and their certain beliefs. They use the freedom of press to print their beliefs. They use the freedom of speech to state their beliefs. They use the freedom of worship and choose not to believe in God. In turn they use their power to censor all other beliefs. It boils down to this: They believe in all the freedoms that we believe in. The only sticker in the woodpile is that they believe in those rights for themselves, not the other guy.

One good thing about our capitalistic system is that we have freedom of speech, etc., along with our elected officials. As long as we have those freedoms we're safe, at least from the inside.

Whenever a communist leader says, "I believe in communism," I often wonder if he would believe in it quite so heavily if he had to live under it and its censorships. I rather doubt it. I think the communist leaders, if they want to be honest about it, should say, "I believe in communism for the people below me, not for myself." Do you agree?

Owner Reports Camera Stolen

M. C. Gilbert of Castle Rock told the sheriff's office Monday that someone had taken his Argus camera off his desk at Godwin Beavers Co. Inc., 109 W. Fillmore St.

Gilbert said the back door of the company had been left open after 5 p.m. Friday and someone had entered the building, and taken the camera worth $30.

Nothing else was taken or missing, according to the report.

How to Keep Well

IMPROVED BREATHING IN EMPHYSEMA

Advanced emphysema of the lungs is difficult to treat. Many victims suffer from shortness of breath, wheezing, and coughing. The bronchi are narrowed by spasm, scar tissue, or casts which form from dried secretions. Several weeks ago we wrote about the removal of the latter by washing out the lungs. Today we are going to describe a neck operation that also is helpful in emphysema.

The procedure (cervical glomectomy) was done originally to relieve bronchial asthma. Several surgeons have had extensive experience with this neck operation. It entails the removal of a nerve center (carotid body) that rests in the fork of the carotid artery, where it branches into two vessels; one branch goes to the scalp and the other into the brain. The carotid body is located in the neck, just below the back part of the lower jaw. The procedure is done under a local anesthetic; the risk is minimal and complications are few.

Dr. John L. Shek of Saginaw, Mich., performed the operation on 39 men and women with emphysema who were extremely short of breath. All but six obtained relief. Twenty-five had been confined to the house; following surgery, they could walk two blocks without difficulty in breathing and three were able to play golf.

Other reports have appeared, especially on victims of chronic bronchial asthma. In these cases the operation tends to relax the walls of the bronchi, which lessens wheezing and relieves breathing.

Dr. Hiromi Nakayama had one of the largest series of cases. In 1961 he reported 81 per cent cured six months after surgery, 73 per cent at two years, and 58 per cent were still relieved after five years.

The effect is not always permanent but most victims of this disease welcome improvement of any type. Best results are obtained in young persons with intractable bronchial asthma that has not responded to the usual remedies.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Self-Help Farmer Plan Abandoned by Demos

Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy-Johnson administration for all practical purposes has abandoned a so-called self-help mechanism which it had planned to employ in assisting farmers to obtain stable prices and production.

This mechanism is the marketing-order program. It ranked high among farm program proposals advanced by the Democrats during the 1960 presidential campaign and recommended to Congress during earlier years of the administration.

The marketing-order mechanism was started back in the 1930s, but never had been used extensively except in the case of fluid milk.

The orders set up procedures under which producers of a given commodity, operating through handlers, regulate the quantites moving to market. Originally, legislation authorizing such orders provided that regulations be limited largely to grade, size and quality. It did not authorize controls on marketings by quantity.

The orders were established only if approved by at least two-thirds of the producers voting in a referendum. Producer administrative committees issued regulations on shipments, subject to approval by the secretary of agriculture.

Other than for milk, the main purpose of the orders is to keep low quality products off the market where they tend to pull down producer prices and income from the whole production. In the case of milk, the orders set minimum prices which handlers must pay dairymen.

In legislative proposals laid before Congress in 1961, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman made a pitch for legislation which would permit use of marketing orders on a larger list of farm commodities and on a national scale rather than the limited regional use previously allowed.

Freeman urged also that the legislation allow use of rigid marketing quotas.

"If marketing quotas are authorized," he said at the time, "an industry would be able to plan the production of a commodity before the beginning of the marketing season, instead of taking action to divert the excess only after a surplus is created and resources are wasted."

But Congress did not go as far in broadening the possible use of such orders as Freeman had urged. Neither did it grant authority for marketing quotas. This congressional action tended to lessen the administration's interest in this stabilization mechanism.

97-Year-Old Goes To Traffic School

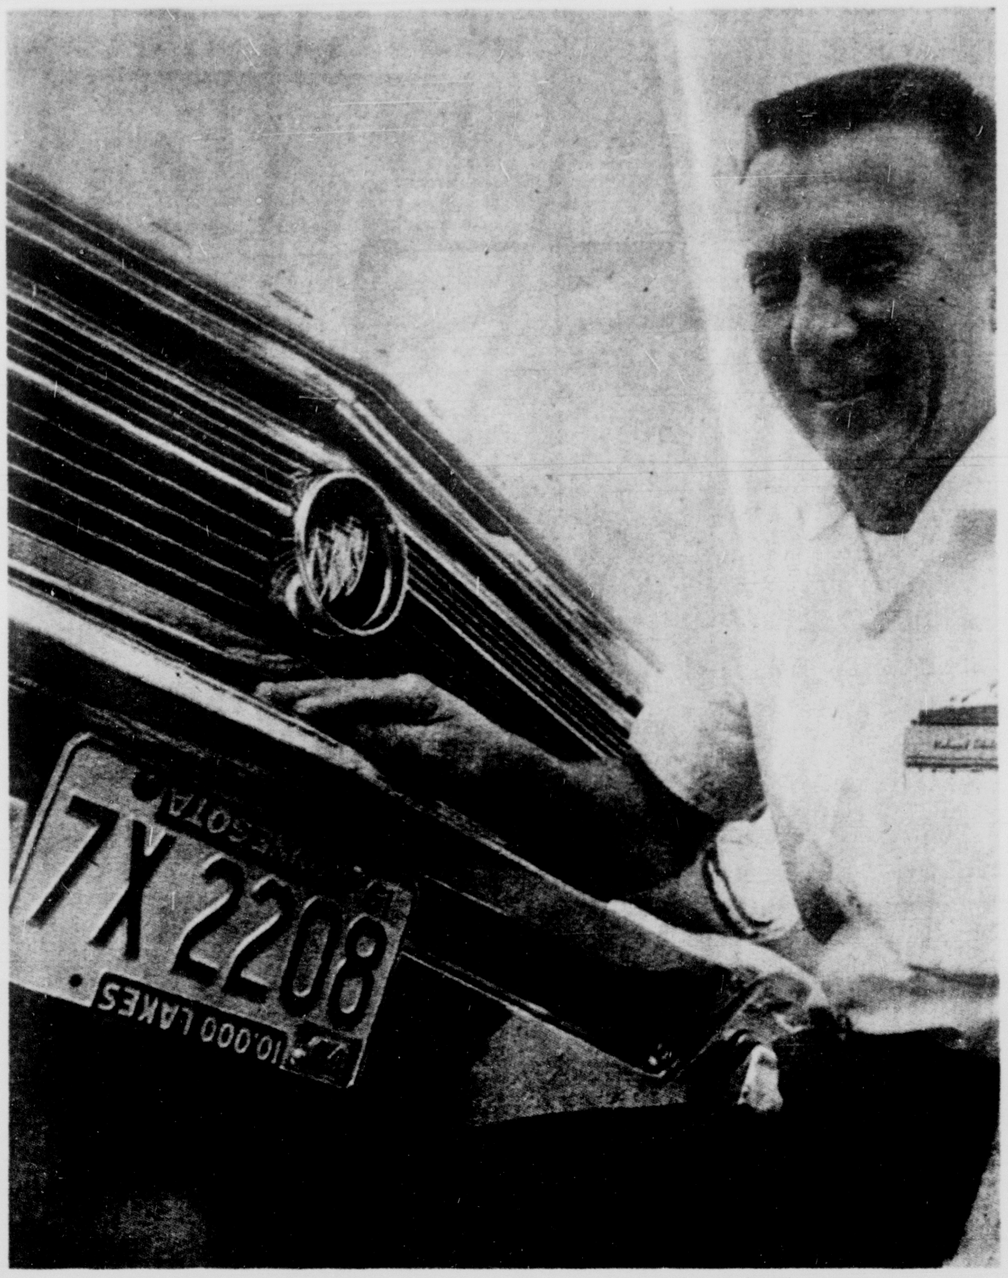
WASHINGTON (AP) — At 97, Peter M. Luerutz has discovered that even 60 years experience is not an infallible teacher. So now he is heading for traffic school.

Sixty years ago, Luerutz first drove a car — a two-cylinder Oldsmobile. He took it over the Michigan roads in 1904 at three miles an hour. He has been driving ever since.

Earlier this month, Luerutz swung in front of another car and tried to make a right turn. The cars collided, and Luerutz had to come to a hearing Monday in the Court of General Sessions.

"I thought I had room to make the turn," Luerutz testified. Chief Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King decided some schooling was in order, and Luerutz agreed to go to traffic school.

"He's without doubt the oldest ever to go," King said.



SOMEBODY GOOFED — Dave Flynn, operator of a used car lot in Worthington, Minn., figures a state reformatory prisoner was daydreaming about the parole board when he stamped out this topsy-turvy license plate. State Regulation Of Banks Is Being Proposed

By RICHARD L. GRAVES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two federal officials are at odds over whether federal regulation of state banks should be transferred to state governments.

James J. Saxon, comptroller of the currency, proposed at the 90th annual American Bankers Association convention Monday that the transfer be made.

"Such a transfer of regulatory power would encourage improved performance by the state authorities, and it would end the discriminatory treatment of state banks which results from the exercise of federal authority," he said.

Joseph W. Barr, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., a government agency, attacked the proposal as "a radical change, a very radical change."

William F. Kelly, president of the bankers association, said he disagreed with Saxon's proposal. He contended the problem is "really one of effective cooperation at the federal level so as to assure relatively uniform and fair treatment of national and state banks."

Under Saxon's proposal, state authorities would have such powers as the say in qualifying state banks to receive federal deposit insurance on accounts.

Saxon also contended that "no discernible public purpose is served" by regulations requiring approval by the Federal Reserve Board for new state bank branches or mergers of state banks.

"These decisions properly belong with the chartering authority which is charged with responsibility for shaping the banking structure," he said.

Of the 13,534 commercial banks in the United States at the end of 1963, 8,919 operated under state charters. They represented 45 per cent of the resources of all commercial banks.

Barr said he is "prepared to try to maintain the balance that has been arrived at and is obviously working."

ADD NEW MATH

CHICAGO (UPI) — Modern math isn't a must for every public school today, says as educator and consultant in modern mathematics teaching methods.

Reporting in "The PTA Magazine," Irwin K. Feinsteis, professor of mathematics education at the University of Illinois, said there is real danger in rushing into a program of new math teaching before pupils, parents, teachers and the community are prepared or it.

One reason: teachers find that "even after a long in service preparation, the sew math is difficult and that their teaching function is different. More cooperation, planning and study are required than with a traditional program.

Child Kidnaped Six Months Ago Still Missing

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

CHICAGO (AP) — Today is Mrs. Chester Fronczak's 29th birthday — but there will be no celebration.

Mrs. Fronczak will begin the day as she has all others for the past six months — by going to St. Anne's Roman Catholic church to pray and keep the vigil candles burning.

Six months ago today, Mrs. Fronczak's day-old son, Paul Joseph, was kidnaped from her hospital room by a woman who posed as a nurse. Despite thousands of telephoned and mailed tips, police have no leads in the case.

As the search for the infant proved futile, more and more attention focused on Mrs. Fronczak, a brown-eyed, attractive brunette whose first child was stillborn the year before.

"Oh, I'm fine now — physically," Mrs. Fronczak assured an interviewer Monday. "But emotionally I just can't seem to get over the loss of the baby.

"It's something they say time heals," she said wistfully, "but so far it hasn't.

"We keep hoping that maybe he'll return." Her husband, Chester Jr., 33, a machinist, left his job for five weeks to help his wife adjust to the loss of their son.

At first Mrs. Fronczak went into virtual seclusion after her release from Michael Reese Hospital.

But now, she says, "I do get out quite a bit. I don't visit the priest (Father Daniel Purcell of St. Anne's) quite as much but I stop in the church every morning to see to the candles.

"I believe God will return him some day."

Faith and a desire to keep her home going helped in those anguished first days, Mrs. Fronczak recalled.

"What pulled me together," Mrs. Fronczak said, "was the thought that if Paul is found who would be here to take care of him?

"I just hope that he is being taken care of and not neglected."

Police Lt. John Carten, who has worked steadily on the case since it broke, said today that "there's nothing new. We're still checking out leads."

But now, he said, the leads average less than one a day.

"I'm not giving up hope," he said. "There's still a good chance the baby is alive and well."

Import Prices Are Boosted For Britishers

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP) — Britons resigned themselves today to stiff price increases on manufactured imports as a result of the Labor government's new 15 per cent surcharge to cut buying abroad.

Traders on the European continent and in Ireland expressed alarm that the crash action of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's new Labor government would sharply reduce their lucrative flow of exports to Britain. Wilson's experts anticipated imports would be cut about $560 million a year.

In Washington, the U.S. Treasury commended the plan as a prompt and effective way to protect the stability of the pound sterling. The surcharge will apply to about 50 per cent of the $1.5 billion worth of goods the United States sells to Britain each year.

The surcharge affects all imports except food, raw materials and raw tobacco. At 5 per cent, cost of the items involved will rise about three shillings — 42 cents — to the pound — $2.80. But economists believe that after sales taxes and retailers' profits the actual increase will be closer to 20 per cent.

The surcharge was the main step the government announced Monday in an emergency program designed to check Britain's widening balance of payments — the difference between what the nation earns abroad and what it buys. To spur exports, the government promised exporters tax rebates ranging from 1 to 3 per cent.

Wilson said Monday night in a television address that Britain could "no longer afford easy-going attitudes." The import levies, he said, were on "goods which a country like Britain should be able to make herself." He stressed that the measures were only temporary and denied that his government favored increased trade barriers.

There was some fear that the price increases would set off a new round of wage demands and defeat the government's long-term stabilization plans. The government's big hope lay in a hopeful sign from its allies in the Trades Union Congress.

After a meeting with Wilson, Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan and Economic Minister George Brown, the TUC General Council said it had assured the prime minister of its "willingness to examine urgently how best the trade union movement can make a positive contribution to a national recovery."

Most of the British press supported the government's action.

The conservative Daily Mail acknowledged that something had to be done to cope with the economic situation. The liberal Guardian called it an "encouraging start" and the independent anti-Socialist Daily Express commented, "sensible and timely."

But businessmen in West Germany, Britain's main trading partner in Western Europe, said "sharp protests," and possibly counter measures, could be expected from German industry.

French businessmen said 60 to 75 per cent of French exports to Britain would be affected, and expressed grave concern.

The news produced gloom in Canada, which sold $792 million worth of goods to Britain between January and August of this year. Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson said he expected about a third of Canada's exports to Britain would be affected. Some Canadian manufacturers said the surcharge was better than devaluation of the pound or restrictions on the quantity of imports.

Common Market officials in Brussels said all six of its members — West Germany, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg — would be affected. They said Dutch refined oil products, German machinery and Italian textiles would probably be hit hardest.

Swiss businessmen expressed fear the measures would seriously harm their nation's foreign trade. More than half Switzerland's exports to the seven-nation European Free Trade Association go to Britain.

The EFTA Council held a special meeting in Geneva to consider the British measures. Foreign Minister Per Hakkerup of Denmark, an EFTA member, said the British action was "out of harmony" with the free trade area.

"The charges are a disaster for Irish industry," said J. J. Stacey, director-general of the Federation of Irish Industry. "Many of our exports simply could not get into Britain against this surcharge."

More than half of all accidental deaths in the 65-and-over age group are the result of falls, the U.S. Public Health Service reports.

Ohio State Retains Lead In Grid Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio State would like nothing better than to celebrate the 10th anniversary of its last national football championship by winning the title again.

Now past the halfway point in quest of that honor last achieved in 1954, the unbeaten Buckeyes are at the top of The Associated Press major college rankings for the second straight week.

Ohio State, with five victories, received 32 of the 47 first-place votes and a total of 439 points as the Top Ten remained fairly static. The only changes from last week's standings were made in the lower four teams.

Second-ranked Notre Dame and third-rated Alabama provided the Buckyes with their only real opposition for the top spot, but the two undefeated teams had a tighter battle between themselves.

Alabama, 6-0, earned eight first-place votes to Notre Dame's six but trailed the Irish, 5-0, in over-all points 387-380.

Arkansas, 6-0, received the other vote for the top spot and had 311 points for fourth place. Nebraska, 6-0, retained fifth place with 242 points while Texas, 5-1, held sixth with 195.

Two teams were dropppd from the Top Ten after losing last Saturday. Syracuse, eight last week, was belted by Oregon State 31-13, and Virginia Tech defeated Florida State, 10th last week, 20-11.

The newcomers are Oregon, No. 7, and Georgia Tech, No. 8. The West Coast team blanked Washington 7-0 for its sixth straight victory while the independent Yellow Jackets nipped Tulane 7-6 for its sixth in a row.

Louisiana State, held to a 3-3 tie by Tennessee, fell from seventh to ninth, and Florida, 17-14 losers to Alabama, slid from ninth to 10th.

Starting Saturday at Iowa, Ohio State will play three Big Ten foes plus Penn State for the remainder of its schedule. Notre Dame, meanwhile, must wade through five opponents—Navy, Pitt, Michigan State, Iowa and Southern California.

Tips for Tigers?

Jerry Carle, head administrator of Colorado College's bandaged brigade in the mayhem known as football, has seen his Tigers short-changed on the scoreboard six straight times this fall. But he at least has the consolation that even the pros can make glaring mistakes.

* * *

After last Saturday's 42-0 venture at Santa Clara, in which Carle insists his team was not manhandled nearly as much as the score might indicate, he took refuge in nearby San Francisco in hopes of picking up a few pointers from the big league.

He expected some great things from the National Football League teams as the 49ers played the Minnesota Vikings. But he hardly expected what he saw.

"I've heard stories about players going the wrong way," Carle told the downtown Quarterback Club on Monday, "but I never thought I would actually see such a play."

You see, Carle was on hand in Kezar Stadium when the Vikings' Jim Marshall grabbed a bounding fumble and took off for the goal line 60 yards away. The only catch was that his "goal" was actually only 40 yards distant and he was going the wrong way.

The safety he scored for the opposing San Francisco team undoubtedly will go down into the annals of NFL history. Even his team's 27-22 victory couldn't ease the personal pain.

"It was the funniest thing I've seen on a football field," said the coach who has seen his own Tigers come up with some rather comical capers in the past. But, of course, he was a bit more neutral in this case, although it was his native state's represenative in the NFL that caused the giggles from the stands.

"George Mira had moved his team upfield in the fourth quarter. He passed to Bill Kilmer (former UCLA tailback) but he was banged real hard by two or three guys," Carle related.

"When the ball dropped out of his hands, Marshall caught it on the bounce and saw nothing but open field in front of him.

"While he was running full steam, the Vikings on the bench ran along on the sidelines yelling and waving. But he said after the game he thought they were just cheering him on."

Carle said the funniest part was that the 49ers knew what was going on right away. They "peeled off and formed a wall of blockers, cutting down all of Marshall's teammates who were trying to tackle him."

Then, after reaching the end zone, Marshall tossed the ball and turned for congratuations.

JERRY CARLE
Sees NFL Oddity

* * *

And the first one to get to him was one of the San Francisco players. To his surprise, the 49ers ran up and shook his hand.

"He still didn't realize what had happened," Carle said. "But when his own quarterback came up and almost slugged him in the jaw he knew something was wrong."

The CC coach gave no indication that he might put the play into his team's repertoire, as opponents this year seem to need a little help. He cautioned, though, that this week this writer will "have to be on his own" making predictions as the Tigers won't provide an easy forecast. They have an open date this Saturday before finishing out against Doane College of Crete, Nebr., and Colorado Mines (also winless so far).

Next week at the Quarterback Club, in addition to the regular reports from the area coaches, seven members of the 1923 Colorado Springs High Terrors will be honored — and a big crowd is expected.

Those who will attend are Field and Forrest Phelps, Al Bevan, Ed Allen, Floyd Long, Milt Springer and manager George Dern.

That year the Terrors played in what amounted to a national championship game for preps, defeating St. James of Haverhill, Mass., here in Colorado Springs, 35-0.

That fall the Terrors had mopped up on just about every team in the area and were being boomed as the best in the west. Haverhill was the New England champ and considered the class of the east.

Coach of the winning Springs team was Joseph Erps, after whom the field near Palmer High gymnasium is named.

It was probably the biggest game ever played by regional high schoolers, and the old timers should have quite a time reminiscing.

SCL Race in Wild Scramble

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Soprts Writer

The South Central League may not possess Colorado's finest prep football talent this fall, but there's one characteristic that hasn't changed. The veteran southern conference is heading toward the wire with the state's wildest AAA race.

There was a chance at midseason that the SCL might employ sanity as its method of selecting a champion this year. But that possibility evaporated over the past weekend as the race turned toward its final two weeks with only one of its seven teams officially eliminated from contention.

Wasson, one of the strong pre-season title choices and the leader at mid-point with a 3-0 record, saw its strong drive disrupted, despite a brilliant second half rally. The Thunderbirds' 14-13 loss to Pueblo Centennial dropped the race into a wild scramble with none of the first six teams having more than two losses.

The T-Birds maintained a slight lead, however; and will move into the final two weeks knowing that a pair of triumphs will still present them with the title outright. Wasson's 3-1 mark is a shade better than the 3-1-1 of Centennial, a team that has played one more game, and the 2-1-1 of Palmer.

But, of the primary candidates at this point, the Bulldogs definitely have the best of the schedule. Centennial cleans up its league work this weekend against winless Pueblo Central, the lone SCL team that does not retain a chance at the 1964 crown. Wasson, Palmer, and East, the other prime contenders, all stare ahead toward rigorous tasks the final two weekends.

Perhaps the top story will be spun this Saturday in Wasson Stadium where Palmer and Wasson carry their spirited rivalry to a new plateau. In addition to the local significance attached to the game, there will be the issue of the league championship which both are in a position to attain. A victory for the T-Birds would mean that a triumph at Trinidad the following week would deliver the title. On the other hand, a Palmer win would drop Wasson down the standings and give the Terrors an opportunity to tie for the title, even if Centennial wins its final start against Central.

There are a number of other possibilities, most of them more remote, but regardless of the outcome the SCL has once again filled its billing as one of Colorado's most evenly balanced prep circuits. The results up to this point provide very little key as to what will happen from here on out, as comparative scores reveal nothing but a weird mixture.

For instance, Wasson has whipped South, Central, and East, but lost to Centennial. The Bulldogs have defeated Palmer, South, and Wasson, but lost to East and were tied by Trinidad. Palmer, on the other hand, followed a loss to Centennial and a tie with South, by whipping both Central and Trinidad. And that is the base for the usual SCL maze.

Even the wins by the contenders last weekend established no clear pattern. Centennial rolled to a 14-0 halftime lead behind a clever display of ball control, but the Bulldogs had their bark turned to a cough in the final two periods during which they ran just 13 plays, including punts.

Wasson quarterback Jim Smith, who gained 100 yards rushing and passed for 60 more, quided the 'Birds back into contention. A drive following the second half kickoff carried inside the Centennial 10 before a fumble delivered the blow that may have cost the decision. In the fourth period the hard-driving T-Birds pushed across one score to cut the margin to 14-7 and then returned quickly with a second on a 13 yard pass from Smith to end Charlie Steel. Steel's conversion attempt was wide, however, and the Bulldogs escaped with the win.

Palmer used a 19 yard field goal off the toe of accurate Claude Spears to build a temprary lead over Trinidad but the Miners marched back to capture the advantage on Charles Nardine's 30 yard scamper before halftime. In the third period, the Tribe worked out of a fake-punt formation to spring ace fullback, Ben Bryant on a 47 year trip through the Miner defense for what proved to be the deciding points.

East, the pre-season favorite to win the title, followed its 14-0 loss to Wasson with a shabby performance against South. The Eagles scored first on a 13 yard run by Ed Griego but the ensuing kickoff was returned 82 yards by the Colts' Sherman Jones to produce a 6-6 deadlock. An Eagle punt late in the game was spoiled by a fumble of the center snap and South took over, only to fail to score. Shortly afterwards East was forced to punt again and this one was blocked, with South capturing it at the three and Ron Lawlis running over for the winning score with 27 seconds left.

Central gave up a pair of crushing long runs and dropped a 27-6 decision to Fort Collins Poudre in the only non-league action.

Sparring Partners Flee Sonny's Training Camp

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

You're the lone healthy sparring partner still standing against viciously good Sonny Liston.

Your name—Amos (Night Train) Lincoln.

Your job—Stay alive...keep well...and prepare the ex-champion for his self-styled day of reckoning Nov. 16 with Cassius Clay, the man who lifted his heavyweight title.

You've watched 10 spar mates fall battered and bleeding by the wayside. There's still three weeks to go.

"I love to see the late afternoon, it means I've made it through another one," confided Lincoln at Liston's plush white cliffs resort training camp Monday. Fresh sea breezes blow across this mayhem manor just a few miles from where the pilgrims—they never got past the amateurs—landed.

"Sonny's ready, mentally and physically," Night Train said. "He's going to knock Clay out real quick—the first time he catches him good in a corner.

"In the ring you can run so far and then the guy's going to catch you. Clay was looking for a way out in the fifth round the last time, saying 'My eyes, my eyes.'

"I've been boxing for years. There's never been a man I couldn't tie up. But I can't do anything with Sonny. He's too strong.

"Lots of guys just don't want to box with Sonny. Oh, maybe earlier in training survival wasn't uppermost in their minds. But now Liston is getting down to the point where every punch counts.

"Man, in the last round when they say 'that's it', I let out a big 'W-h-e-e-w!'

"He used up seven sparring partners before we got here. Now Leroy Green has a couple of broken ribs. And Alonzo Johnson just took off yesterday. He said 'More of this ain't going to happen to me.'

"There's a rumor $80 is being offered to anyone who can last a couple of rounds with Sonny. That's not enough loot.

"They tell me more sparring partners are on the way.

"I hope so.

"I could sure use some help."

Lee Williams of Boston came to the rescue about an hour later at the workout. He won't be back. As if to prove the ailing left shoulder which forced him to retire in the first fight was sound, Liston raked open a half-inch, eight-stitch cut over Williams' eye with a smashing left hook.

Another recruit, Floyd Joyner, watched. He's from Rochester, Minn., where top medical help is handy. Nevertheless, he gazed at Liston, then Williams clutching a blood-soaked towel to his head, and strolled out for air from the golf clubhouse where the ring is housed. At last report he was on the verge of coming down with a severe case of "I want to go home."

Liston had said he feels "more vicious" for this fight than the previous one.

Veteran fight camp followers agree, adding Sonny looks sharper, faster and far more dangerous than he did in the ring at Miami.

Liston, a jazz fan, used to work out to the strains of "Night Train" but explains of the record, "We wore it out."

The way he's wearing out sparring partners he may soon switch to an oldy — "I Ain't Got Nobody."

Chamberlain Set to Give NBA 'Stomach Ache'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, whose prolonged "stomach ache" has caused the San Francisco Warriors severe pain, is about ready to resume his role as pro basketball's most prolific scorer.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who has led National Basketball Association scorers for the past five seasons, worked out with the Warriors Monday for the first time since Sept. 21.

He was hospitalized for four weeks with what doctors finally diagnosed as an inflamed pancreas.

Team officials said today the 290-pound Chamberlain is on a controlled diet. He is avoiding fried food and carbonated beverages, they said, as well as cutting down on his daily intake of all foods.

Although the Warriors meet Baltimore tonight in Oakland, Calif., Chamberlain still won't be in the line-up. The towering center currently is on the injured reserve list, prohibiting him from appearances in the first five games.

But the man who holds nearly every NBA scoring record will be back in action Saturday when Baltimore visits San Francisco — and it won't be a bit too soon for the Warriors.

Chamberlain's value to the club is reflected in his 1963-64 record.

Not only did the Big Dipper lead the loop in point production with a 36.9-per-game average, he ranked among the top five in the league in assists — and was the only center in that select group.

He also pulled down an average of 21.1 rebounds a game to rank second in that department to Boston's Bill Russell.

Philadelphia Welcomes Its Athletes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Some 500 persons were at International Airport Monday night to welcome home the city's contingent of Olympic athletes, including gold medal winners Joe Frazier, 20-year-old heavyweight boxing champion, and the Vesper Boat Club, winners of the eight-oared sculling race.

City police, manning a cordon around the athletes, broke ranks to cheer one of their own, patrolman William Sharpe, a triple jumper in the games. Ira Davis, another American triple jumper, also was among the arriving heroes.

The athletes were told they were to receive awards in the city's behalf today in the mayor's reception room.

Among those greeting the athletes was John B. Kelly Jr., former Olympic sculler, and sponsor of the Vesper Club. He called the Vesper victory a "tremendous team job" and urged a national lottery to support U.S. Olympic entries in the future.

ERA OF ARA AT NOTRE DAME — Football coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame has things going his way. Since joining the Irish this season, he has guided them to five straight victories, including last Saturday's 28-6 win over Stanford. He's shown here putting the squad through a workout. (AP Wirephoto)

Ara Leads Irish From Dark Decade

By JERRY LISKA

SOUTH BEND, Ind (AP) — Notre Dame's golden dome has a new glisten—from the aura of Ara Parseghian.

The Fighting Irish have won their first successive games so quickly and so convincingly under their new football coach that Notre Dame's legions of long-frustrated partisans overnight have forgotten the school's dark decade of gridiron fortunes.

In pasting Stanford 28-6 last Saturday with an awesome defensive display, the revitalized Irish became the first Notre Dame club to win its first five starts since Frank Leahy's last team in 1953.

The 1953 team was Notre Dame's last unbeaten contender with a 9-0-1 record. But it was 13 seasons ago, in 1949, that Leahy's national champions had the last perfect Irish season, a 10-0-0 achievement.

Now, the legendary Spirit of Notre Dame has been so rekindled by Parseghian that the campus crackles with the expectancy the Irish will once again win over all.

Before the Stanford game an imposing statue of Moses, in front of Notre Dame's new library with a finger pointed skyward, suddenly bore a placard reading:

"Moses says we're No. 1."

At a prep rally preceding Notre Dame's second game against Purdue, when Parseghian was introduced, the students loosed a roaring din that prevented the former Northwestern coach from getting in a word for 10 full minutes.

Notre Dame's 34-15 triumph over Purdue Oct. 3 was a tip-off that Parseghian might be an instant wonder-worker with leftovers from the 1963 team that won only two games and some big, but untested sophomores.

Since that setback, Purdue has become a formidable Big Ten title contender with victories over Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa.

The Irish have averaged 30 points per game and fashioned the nation's best defensive record against rushing in storming past Wisconsin, Purdue, Air Force, UCLA and Stanford.

Remaining on Notre Dame's schedule are Navy, Pittsburgh, Michigan State, Iowa and Southern California.

Understandably, Parseghian —who saw flaming starts too often fade into November ashes in eight Big Ten seasons at Northwestern— warns that the Irish bubble could burst any time.

He cringes at thought of injury to either of his record-breaking pass combination of quarterback John Huarte and end Jack Snow. Without Huarte, the Irish victory march could be reduced to a straggling limp.

"Our whole offense is built around Huarte," said Parseghian. "Without him, we just don't go."

"We have one excellent defensive unit and one real good offensive unit, but have a marked lack of depth behind either. We've got to stay healthy, because each time we win from now on makes us more and more a marked team."

Former Coach Leahy, most successful in the Irish lineage following Rockne, has been lured to the past few Notre Dame games from his Portland, Ore., insurance base.

Leahy was ribbed by Irish Atheltic Director Edward (Moose) Krause:

"You never talked that way on Friday nights when you were coach, Frank."

Leahy, who publicly blasted recent Irish Coaches Terry Brennan and Joe Kuharich for failing to invoke a winning spirit, said "It really is a pleasure to see Notre Dame play this season."

Grisham Rushes to No. 2 Spot

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Oklahoma's power-driving fullback Jim Grisham, who failed to rank among the league's top 15 rushers two weeks ago, has vaulted into second place on the Big Eight Conference rushing charts with his best back - to - back effort of the year, it was announced today by the league's Service Bureau.

Grisham, who gained 104 yards against Kansas the week before, netted 92 in the Sooners' 44-0 romp over Kansas State last Saturday to give him a season total of 320.

Despite Grisham's rapid climb, he still trails Kansas' Gale Sayers by 133 yards. Last week's runnerup, Oklahoma State's Walt Garrison, dropped to third with a 299 total and Nebraska's Frank Solich is fourth with a 296 figure.

Lance Rentzel, Grisham's talented teammate, ranks sixth in rushing and is listed among the leaders in every individual statistical category except passing.

Oklahoma State's Glenn Baxter maintained his aerial lead with a 554 total to the 470 runnerup mark of Missouri's Gary Lane. Lane, with a 179 total offense effort against Iowa State, took over the Big Eight total offense lead with a 745 mark — 15 more than Baxter's 730 figure. Baxter, however, has played in one less game than Lane.

Moving into third in both passing and total offense was Nebraska's sophomore quarterback Bob Churchich. Churchich, since taking over for the injured Fred Duda in the Iowa State game Oct. 3, has hit for 418 yards through the air and 509 total.

Halfback Kent McCloughan, who continued his pace of scoring at least one touchdown in every Nebraska game, has totaled nine touchdowns and two conversion points for a total of 56.

Wally Hinshaw of Kansas has taken over the punting lead from state - rival Doug Dusenbury. Hinshaw dropped Dusenbury from the top spot for the first time this season with his 40.5 average on 12 boots.

The Wildcat ace, who is defending his punting crown of a year ago, has a 40.4 average on 30 kicks. Oklahoma's Rentzel is a close third with a 40.2 mark.

Other individual leaders are: Bill Symons, Colorado, pass receptions (19-for-210) and Rentzel (13-for-245); Sayers, punt returns (7 - for - 111), and Tom Vaughn, Iowa State, kickoff returns (10-for-279).

Cheyenne Can Clinch WRL Title, Saturday

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

After recording a 26-14 squeaker over Widefield last weekend, Guy Barickman's potent Indians attempt to wrap up the first Will Rogers League championship this Saturday when the Cheyenne Mountain footballers play host to vastly improved Canon City.

Game time is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at the Cheyenne Stadium.

Should the Canon City gridders, fresh from a 46-0 thrashing of Harrison last week, pull an upset and defeat the undefeated Cheyenne team it would put the league in a two-way tie and force a playoff.

The Widefield Academy High game Friday night will decide (1) which team meets Cheyenne in the playoff should the Indians succumb to Canon City (2) or which team wraps up second place in WRL standings.

In the only other WRL encounter last weekend, the talented Big Blue of Academy High fell short in their non - conference outing against always-strong Pueblo Catholic. The Shamrocks tumbled the Kadets, 26-7, and presented the Academy High group with its third setback of the year.

Other games scheduled this weekend pit state - ranked Iver Ranum against Harrison at the Panthers' home field Friday night. The Widefield - Academy High game is slated for the Gladiators' Stadium the same night.

Should the Indians present Canon City with its third loss in WRL competition, the Cheyenne team will clinch the league championship and meet La Junta for a berth in the State Triple-A playoffs.

La Junta captured the Southern League title with an impressive 45-20 victory over Lamar, last year's State Double-A finalist. The La Junta victory last week came on the arm of Dewey Harfdin, who completed 17 of 27 aerials for a whopping 333 yards, and the running of halfback Ken Brumit.

Brumit rushed for 179 net yards and scored three TD's for the La Junta eleven. The winner of the WRL will find the La Junta gridders a rough team to handle. Cheyenne dropped one of its two games this season to Lamar, 12-7.

In reviewing the two WRL games last weekend, Don Stimack's Tigers displayed their teeth against Harrison as Canon City went on a seven-TD rampage behind the passing of quarterback Dan Scavarda and running of Mickey Gann and Dennis Meese.

The Tigers compiled 458 total years while their stout line held the Panthers to a minus 46 yards rushing and 121 yards passing. Save the valliant performance of quarterback Bill Doud, the Panthers failed to stir-up any offensive drive. This was the Panthers fourth WRL loss and closed out their league campaign.

Cheyenne's 198-pound Greg Cramblit once again proved too powerful for the opposition to stop as the Indians senior bone-crushing fullback scored three touchdowns and rushed for 157 yards via 20 carries.

This was Cramblit's seventh touchdown scored in the last two games as the big Cheyenne back scored all four TD's to spearhead the Indians' 27-7 sterling win over Trinidad two weeks ago.

Junior High Gridder Dies of Game Injuries

METHUEN, Mass. (AP) — John Orcutt, 14, an eighth grader at Lowell's Edith Nourse Rogers Junior High School, died Monday after being injured in an interschlastic football game.

Orcutt was injured while making a tackle in the second period of a game with a Methuen team. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Bon Secours Hospital.

Bronc Coach Confirms Trade Possibility

DENVER (UPI)— Denver Bronco coach Max Speedie confirmed Monday the possibility that a trade might be engineered for veteran kicking artist Gene Mingo and corner back Willie West had been ruled out.

Speedie, however, said the two athletes, suspended Sunday for "conduct detrimental to the best interests of the team," may be disposed of via the waiver route.

If the men are placed on waivers, other American Football League clubs might claim them with the understanding that they in turn would place a specific player on waivers for the Broncos.

"We just haven't reached a final decision in the case," said Speedie. "There are several facets still to be considered. We should know more in a day or two."

RMKC Gate, Handle Marks Broken

New records were set at the Rocky Mountain Kennel Club on Monday, the 56th night of the current meet, in both the attendance and mutuel handle departments.

A little over normal attendance for a Monday night of 2,785 pushed the 1964 meet's attendance to a total of 153,006, surpassing the previous all-time high for any one season, (since minors were excluded from attendance), of 152,506 set for the 1963 meet.

A handle figure of $160,721 brought the total mutuel handle for the current season to $7,166,806 and thereby bettered the previous record of $7,062,681 set by the 1963 meet.

Fans saw El Camino Duke, winner of the 1964 RMKC $2,500 Puppy Stakes, win the featured ninth race and pay $5.40, $3.20 and $2.40 across the board while T.V. Hoss came in for place honors at $4.80 and $3, and the 2-6 paid $15.80 to those who had wagered the quiniela.

The 3-1 Daily Double paid $40.60 as Miss Byron, from the kennels of Mrs. Frank Hall won the first race and Kenny Smith's Top Cotton made the win in the second. The Twin Quin was the 2-7 with the 1-2 as 19 persons collected the $521 pay-off which was shy of its $1,235.90 average for the season.

Tonight's feature matches Miss K. Dex, Key Punch, Miss La Juana and Doc Robbie with Diamond Star, T.V. Tobin, Just Power and Kolyno.

Fans are looking forward to the running of the 16th Annual RMKC Derby on Wednesday, where post positions have already been drawn and the field of entries, in post position order, is (1) Frank Pierce's Just Elmer, (2) Mrs. Frank Hall's Cleveland's Choice, (3) F. B. Stutz's Careless Heart, (4) Larry Hughes' Borden's Pride, (5) Don Abernathy's Rapid Progress, (6) Frank Pierce's Betty Babe, the winner a week ago of the 1964 RMKC Sprint Championship, (7) Paul Sutherland's Honeymooner and (8) the Huron Kennel's Sunbrook.

Post time through Wednesday remains at 8 p.m., but is changed to 7:45 on Thursday for the remainder of the meet.

Davidson Is Top AFL Passer

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton Davidson, Oakland's second string quarterback until a couple of weeks ago, is the American Football League's No. 1 passer today.

Latest AFL statistics show Davidson, a nine-year pro veteran, on top in the league's passing efficiency ratings after a five-touchdown, 419-yard binge in last Sunday's 40-7 victory over Denver — the Raiders' first of the season.

The 30-year-old signal-caller, who considered retiring after losing his starting job to Tom Floras last year, completed 25 of 34 tosses and set a club record for passing yardage. His career-high performance shot him past Kansas City's Len Dawson in league passing figures.

Davidson received 52 of a possible 60 efficiency points, to 48 for Dawson and 41 for John Hadl of San Diego.

Houston flanker Chuck Henningan grabbed the pass-catching lead with eight receptions for 145 yards and two TDs in the Oilers' 20-17 loss to the Chargers. Hennigan has caught 46 passes in seven games. Lionel Taylor of Denver, last week's leader, dropped to third place, behind Oakland's Art Powell.

Matt Snell, New York's rookie fullback, picked up only 28 yards in a 34-24 loss to Buffalo but held the rushing lead with a 518-yard total, 36 more than Cookie Gilchrist of the Bills, who was held to 27 yards by the Jets' defense.

Buffalo's Elbert Dubenion caught two touchdown passes for a total of eight, good for third place in the scoring race. Place-kickers Gino Cappelletti of Boston and Pete Gogolak of Buffalo continue to run 1-2 in point production.

Fountain, Salida Stay With Leader

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Fountain vaulted over Manitou Springs last week to hold its own against rampaging Florence was trouncing defense-the toughest schedule remaining among Pikes Peak League teams as the season moves into the final fortnight of activity.

Coach Joe Keegan's Trojans belted Manitou, 27-6, while Florence was trouncing defense-minded Crowley County, 48-13. Salida stayed even with Fountain by tripping winless Buena Vista, 32-6. In the other game Leadville beat Fowler, 13-7. All games were played Wednesday, giving the teams a long time to prepare for this week's action.

Florence could gain at least a tie for the PPL title by beating Buena Vista, an almost-certain victory. The Huskies could possibly win the crown outright if Leadville, which beat a Fowler team that lost to Fountain by only two points, could slip by Salida and if Fountain fell to Crowley County. That would give all the other teams in the league two losses with a week to go.

In the last two weeks, Fountain must play Crowley County and Florence. Salida has to contend with Leadville and Manitou Springs.

Friday's action has Buena Vista at Florence, Crowley County at Fountain and Manitou at Fowler. Salida hosts Leadville Saturday.

Fullback Joe Martinez ran wild over Manitou, gaining 114 yards and scoring eight points. Fountain's Jim Daniels led the scoring race with 13 points. Daniels also gained 39 yards on seven carries.

Manitou couldn't get speedy John Moore around the Fountain defensive ends. It took a 72-yard punt return by Marv Layman to put the only Mustang score on the board. Manitou gained 81 yards, all on the ground. Moore had 39 yards of that total. Layman had 27.

Crowley County had one of the toughest defenses in the league until Florence took command and scored 21 points in the first quarter. The Huskies added 14 more in the second and one TD each in the last two periods.

Dick Shadwell moved over three touchdowns for Fountain, raising his league - leading total to 61.

Salida went scoreless in the first period against the Demons, then went on a TD shopping spree as Leonard Bustos scored on a run and a pass from Norm Williams. Williams scored once himself and Keith Baker went over for another score. Ken Williams got the final Spartan tally.

Leadville got a last-quarter TD to come from a 7-6 deficit and beat Fowler. Leadville had scored only six points in its last four PPL games.

Mikita Has Strong Start On Defense of Point Title

MONTREAL (AP) — Fiery Stan Mikita, junior member of the Chicago Black Hawks' two-man demolition team, is off to an explosive getaway in defense of his National Hockey League scoring title.

Mikita, who with Bobby Hull, gives Chicago its best 1-2 punch since the Bentley brothers, leads the league with a five-game total of 12 points.

The 24-year-old center hopes to become the first repeater as scoring king since Dickie Moore, then of Montreal, achieved the feat six seasons ago. Max Bentley, in 1945-46 and '46-47, was the only Black Hawk ever to win two point titles in succession.

Mikita finished with 89 points last season — two more than Hull.

Mikita scored two goals and assisted on four others last week for a four-point margin over Toronto defenseman Kent Douglas. The Maple Leafs have four players among the top ten scorers, Chicago and Detroit three each.

Hull, the leading goal scorer with five, is looking for his first assist. The blond bomber, who fired three goals against New York Sunday, is in a four-way tie for seventh place.

Montreal's Charlie Hodge paces the goalies with a goals-against average of 1.80 in five games. Arnie Brown, rookie defenseman for the Rangers, has served the most penalty minutes, 20.

UPI Major Loop Team Announced

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill White of the St. Louis Cardinals and Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees were the only members of championship teams named Monday to the United Press International 1964 major league All-Star team.

Nine teams were represented on the 10-man squad with pitcher Dean Chance and shortstop Jim Fregosi making the Los Angeles Angels the only team with more than one representative.

Rounding out the squad as chosen by 20 baseball experts were catcher Joe Torre of the Milwaukee Braves, second baseman Ron Hunt of the New York Mets, third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles, outfielders Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants, Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs and pitcher Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Mays was the most popular vote-getter with 18 of a possible 20. Chance had 17, White 16 and Mantle, Williams and Koufax 15 each. Then came Robinson with 14, Torre with 12, Fregosi with 10 and Hunt with nine.

Seven of the 10 players are under 30 years of age with Mays and Mantle the "senior citizens" at 33. White is 30 and Koufax is 28. All the others range between Fregosi's 22 years and Robinson's 27.

White, a key slugger during the Cardinals' late drive for the National League pennant, batted .303 with 21 homers and 102 runs batted in while Mantle, playing most of the season on chronically - ailing legs, wound up with a .303 average, 35 homers and 111 runs batted in.

Chance and Fregosi, the Angels' pair of All - Stars, are among the most exciting new stars in the game. The 23-year-old Chance compiled a 20-record and a 1.65 earned run mark that is the second lowest of the lively ball era. He also pitched 11 shutouts—more than any other pitcher since 1916.

Fregosi batted .277, hit 18 homers and knocked in 72 runs in addition to fielding his position with a grace and assurance that marked him as a future great of the game.

Torre, taking over the regular Milwaukee catching job for the first time, batted .321 with 20 homers and 109 runs batted in. Hunt, the first Met ever to be honored as an All-Star, hit .303 with six homers and 42 RBI's and Robinson, who rounded out the infield, had 28 homers and 118 runs batted in to go with a .317 average.

Mays hit only .296 but walloped 47 homers and drove in 111 runs while Williams had 33 homers and 98 RBI's to go with a .312 mark.

Talks Begin For Baseball Club Owners

By JOE BRADIS

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — What do general managers and other executives from 19 of 20 major league teams talk about behind closed doors in a secluded resort?

"Baseball naturally," said Joe L. Brown, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates who fostered the idea of such a session, the first ever held outside the regular league meetings and talks at World Series time.

The meeting opened Monday at the exclusive Rolling Rock Hunt Club outside this western Pennsylvania town where millionaries wine and dine, shoot pheasants and deer and hunt fox for pastime.

The meeting will continue through noon Wednesday.

"We just want to prop up our feet, relax and talk about things peculiar to our jobs," said Brown. "Three days isn't time enough, but it will have to do."

If the first session was any baromter, the general managers certainly did a lot of talking — a four-hour session and after a dinner break they burned the oil until about midnight.

What they talked about, no one knows since newsmen were not permitted to sit in on the meetings.

Rolling Rock is used mainly by millionaries and their guests. Photographers are barred altogether except on special occasions. This wasn't one.

While the meetings were private and generally reported geared to such topics as bonus players and farm clubs, the question of Milwaukee moving its franchise to Atlanta was injected by a newsman.

John McHale, general manager of the Braves, declined comment on the move. So did his colleague, Chub Feeney of the San Francisco Giants.

However, one source said there is no doubt in his mind that the National League owners will vote favorably for the shift.

Before the general managers wind up their meeting they certainly will take the opportunity to feel each other out for eventual trades. And the fresh mountain air may be just the stimulant in which to do it.

The Los Angeles Dodgers are the only club not represented here. It currently is holding its own organizational meeting and no representatives could attend.

General managers attending the meeting are Gabe Paul of Cleveland; Jim Campbell of Detroit, John Quinn of Philadelphia, John Holland of the Chicago Cubs, Lee MacPhail of Baltimore, Fred Haney of the Los Angeles Angels, McHale, Feeney, George Selkirk of Washington, Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees, Paul Richards of Houston, Calvin Griffith of Minnesota, Pat Friday of Kansas City, Ed Short of Chicago White Sox, Bob Howsam of St. Louis and Brown.

Others at the session are Richard O'Connell, vice president of Boston; Art Routzang of Houston; Bing Devine, assistant general manager of the New York Mets; John Murphy of the Mets; Phil Seghi, assistant general manager of Cincinnati and Joe O'Toole, assistant to the Pirates' general manager.

Before the general managers wind up their meeting they certainly will take the opportunity to feel each other out for eventual trades. And the fresh mountain air may be just the stimulant in which to do it.

Linebackers Lead SWC All-America Contenders

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Two mighty linebackers — Tommy Nobis of Texas and Ronnie Caveness of Arkansas — are the Southwest Conference's leading contenders for the All-America college football team.

Both got the top votes of the regional committee in the first canvass of the season.

Nobis and Caveness each weigh 215 pounds and each is noted for his ferocious tackling and quickness in covering his territory.

Nobis plays offensive guard also and stands out with his blocking. Caveness plays offense only occasionally but is known to be capable of doing a top job there if necessary.

Each counts his tackles in a game by the dozen.

Lawrence Elkins, the great Baylor pass-receiver; Ernie Koy, the kicking-running tailback of Texas; Donny Anderson, Texas Tech's versatile halfback, and Malcolm Walker, the giant center and linebacker of Rice are others on all the check lists of the committee.

Bill Van Fleet of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram cited the fact that Elkins not only is the conference's ace pass-receiver but he plays safety quite efficiently for the Bears.

Lou Maysel of the Austin American noted that Nobis and Caveness had "great noses for the ball." He also said Koy's value was severalfold, including great kicking that wins ball games, and able to even come up with a clutch pass.

Orville Henry of the Arkansas Gazette said Caveness starred every Saturday and he also praised the work of end Jerry Lamb of Arkansas, who was as valuable as a decoy as a pass-receiver.

Dave Campbell of the Waco News-Tribune liked Nobis particularly because he was a two-way player in an era of two-platoon and was good at both. Campbell also thought Caveness was outstanding as a linebacker. "And Koy figures out a way to beat people almost every week," observed Campbell.

Ves Box of KRLD-TV, Dallas, ranked Nobis and Caveness as the top All-America prospects but he also included Ken Hatfield, Arkansas' mighty punt and kickoff returner, in his list of outstanding players.

Mickey Herskowitz of the Houston Post ranked Caveness and Nobis at the top and listed Koy, Walker, Elkins and Anderson in that order.

Springs CC Pro Fires Ace at Eisenhower

E. R. (Lars) Larson, professional at the Colorado Springs County Club, stroked the second hole-in-one of the season at the Eisenhower Golf Course this past week. The shot was made on 16, a 182-yard hole.

Witnesses were W. T. Martin, Carmon Green, and E. F. Beyer.

The Academy course had a near miss earlier this month as Capt. Warren L. Simmons shot a 67 over the rugged layout. The 67 tied the existing course record.

Tide Only Great in Determination--Bryant

By ROSS M. HAGEN

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama has had many great football teams in his career but this year's Crimson Tide has carved a special niche in his heart.

"Our 1961 and 1962 teams had, perhaps, more talent and the raw strength to overpower the opposition, but this outfit wins by determination and effort," Bryant said Monday.

"We have no great amount of talent — no outstanding player other than Joe Namath," Bryant added. "We aren't a great club except in the measure of sheer determination."

The Alabama coach said his team came of age in its 17-14 conquest of Florida. There are those who say that game was the most thrilling college football game ever played in the South. Alabama had to come from behind twice to beat Florida, described by Bryant as one of the best football teams he has faced.

"My previous great teams methodically went about their business of whipping people," Bryant said. "This bunch I've got now has more of the rah, rah spirit."

Whatever it is, Alabama has won six straight games, stands first in Southeastern Conference standings and is ranked third nationally, only seven voting points behind Notre Dame. Ohio State heads the Top Ten.

Significant, perhaps, is the fact that Alabama is winning without Namath, called by Bryant the best football player he has ever coached. Namath reinjured his knee in the first quarter against Florida and his status is doubtful for the tilt with Mississippi State Saturday night in Jackson.

Reviewing the Florida game, decided by David Ray's 21-yard field goal, Bryant said it was the first time this year that Alabama has shown a consistent effort in all four quarters.

Bryant said after the Florida victory that, "Win, lose or draw, this football team of ours takes the No. 1 spot with me."

Bryant said that he did not mean that this year's outfit was the best team he had ever coached.

"But this one will always have a special place in my heart for the way they came back and beat Florida," he said. "They are a great bunch of players."

Bryant had special praise for the Alabama offensive line which was outweighed by Florida by about 20 pounds a man.

"You can't really compare football teams," Bryant said. "Every team has its own individuality and personality. This is brought out on offense on critical third down plays, and on defense when the opposition has the ball on your five-yard line on fourth down."

Looking to Mississippi State, Bryant said, "This is the type of week when a coach is put to the supreme test. It's easy to get a team up for a game like Florida, but it's a real challenge to get them ready for a game they are supposed to win."

Bryant has problems in trying to shape up a defensive backfield. Steve Sloan was playing first string on defense before filling in for Namath.

"He's not fancy," Bryant said of Sloan. "He just gets the job done."

Alabama lost another defensive ace when Frank Canterbury sprained his foot on a pass interception. He will be lost for at least two weeks. Otherwise, the Tide appears to be in good physical condition for the Mississippi State tussle.

Bryant, 51, has been a head coach 19 years and has compiled a record of 146 victories, 49 defeats and 13 ties. Since returning to Alabama, his alma mater, in 1958 his teams have won 56, lost 10 and tied 5.

Countlyman Rike Orympics Especiarry Talmala Pless

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP) — The butang gas has been turned off under the Olympic flame, and the world's largest city — gorged for four years on the "Orympics" — has a five-ring hangover.

But before Mt. Fuji sinks slowly in the West, let's get a Japanese view of the carnival of fun and games just concluded in Tokyo.

Here's an interview with Ichiro K. Watanabe, a Japanese sports fan who watched everything from double tandem cycling to ladies compulsory side horse, and also spent 11 hours a day in front of his television set during the Olympics:

"Watanabe-san, how did you like the Olympic Games?"

"Oh, I rike Orympics fine, but I think maybe I grad it's over now. Rong time, whole town clazy."

"So you're grad. I mean glad, it's over. But what did you like best?"

"Japan win takusan medals in judo and wrestling. Japan velly good at Gleco-Loman wrestling. And gymnastics. Velly good at gymnastics. And malathon. Japan take third in malathon, get blonze medal. Sometimes right shine just light, blonze rooks rike gold."

"I can see how that could happen. One thing, Watanabe-san, how come you say 'wrestling' instead of 'wlestring.' Since you seem to have trouble with L's and R's, I thought it would come out, 'wlestring.'"

"I say wrestling because I think maybe you clazy Americans no understand if I say wlestring."

"Oh, I see. Did you watch the track and field? The Americans enjoyed that."

"I see Henly Call. He ichiban sukoshi lunner, all same rike Bob Hayes. Also Birry Mirrs. He ichiban takusan lunner."

"Let's see if I've learned enough Japanese to understand you. Henly Call would be Henry Carr, I presume. And Birry Mirrs is Billy Mills, the fellow who won the 10,000. Ichiban is number one. And Sukoshi is litte. So takusan must be big. Right?"

"Light. If you speak Japanese so good, how come you make me talk this sirry bloken Engrish?"

"I'm afraid I need more Japanese lessons. What else impressed you at the Olympics, Watanabe-san?"

"Oh, I see Talmala Pless, the Lussian."

"I presume that would be Tamara Press, the large Russian lady?"

"Ah, so desuka. I think maybe she wear size 200 kimono. With big obi. She rook rike hippopotamus who has rost her swamp."

"You have a point there. And did you see the swimming?"

"I see so much swimming I know Amelican national song. Oh, say can you see? Allatime pray that song at swimming. I rike Schorrander. Nice boy."

"You mean Don Schollander, who won four gold medals?"

"That's the boy. Terr me, do her or don't he?"

"What do you mean?"

"Changie-changie hair?"

"Oh, does he dye his hair? No, he's a natural blond."

"Rooks pletty sirry."

"Well, you don't see blonds around here every day, Watanabe-san."

"Don't see Orympics every day, either. And I be happy if no see Orympics again until 2-0-6-4. Sayonara."

"Sayonara, Watanabe-San."

Jackson Signs Pro Contract With 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I think we've got the greatest. You're gonna be surprised. He's got (Boston Celtics' Bill) Russell's timing and he's got a heck of a shot and he's tough."

That's the opinion of Ike Richman, owner of the Philadelphia 76ers of the National Basketball Association. Richman may be patting himself on the back a bit, after signing Lucious Jackson, 6-foot-9 Pan American University and U.S. Olympic team star, to a 76ers contract Monday. But he's apparently put his money where his mouth is.

Contract terms with Jackson, the 76ers' No. 1 draft choice, were not announced, but Richman hinted it cost him the price of maybe a thousand kimonos.

"I think we're going to go all the way with him," said Richman, with unqualified praise for the 240-pounder from San Marcos, Tex.

"In the last game with Russia, there was no question he was the outstanding player on the floor. He took that Russian 7-foot-2 and made him look like nothing. He's a tough kid and nobody's gonna push him around."

When it was suggested things might be a little different in the rough-and-ready NBA, the muscular Jackson himself spoke with some confidence—or innocence.

"I have no fear for anybody in the league," he said. "I MIGHT get pushed around, but I don't expect it.

Braves Ask Federal Court for Jurisdiction

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The legal wheeling and dealing headed for another round today in the Milwaukee Braves' bid to move to Atlanta.

The Braves averted a Circuit Court showdown scheduled for today by asking Monday that the Federal Court take jurisdiction in the county's attmpt to force the club to remain in Milwaukee and fulfill a contract which runs through 1965.

Although the Circuit Court hearing was canceled, a temporary order restraining the Braves from moving was continued. The order issued by Judge Ronald Drechsler prevented the club from seeking National League approval of a franchise transfer at a meeting in New York last week.

The Braves said in their Federal Court petition that "diversity of citizenship" was cause for moving the case out of the state courts. The club is a Delaware corporation with principal offices in Chicago.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert E. Tehan set Nov. 5 for a hearing. He said he would determine whether Wisconsin or Illinois is the Braves' principal place of business and whether six Wisconsin directors who oppose the club's move are proper parties in the action.

Ray T. McCann, a Milwaukee attorney retained by the Braves, said the club would show that its principal business has been transacted out of Chicago "for the past three or four weeks." The Braves announced recently they had moved their executive offices from Milwaukee County Stadium to Chicago Oct. 5.

The Braves said in the petition that if the club is compelled to play 1965 home games in Milwaukee it will sustain losses "in excess of $10,000."

In another development Monday, Mayor Henry Maier and representatives of several other cities issued a statement urging that a definite blueprint be drawn for major league expansion.

The statement also proposed banning transfer of a franchise unless a home community fails to support the team as measured by a formula that would include the investment return to the club.

The statement added that organized baseball should reaffirm its belief in the sanctity of contracts and local ownership should be given the first option on any sale.

Attending the meeting with Maier, who is president of the American Municipal Association, were Mayor J. D. Bramen of Seattle; Paul Hurd, director of the Cleveland stadium authority; Thomas Gallagher, an assistant to Mayor Jerome Cavanaugh of Detroit; William Rasky, consultant to Mayor James H. Tate of Philadelphia, and Arthur Zecca, a deputy to Tate.

Maier said the "statement of principles" will be sent to mayors of other large cities in the nation and a committee then will be named to meet with baseball leaders.

Harrison Is Favored In National Seniors

By BILL STALL

RENO (AP) — A retired professional golfer who says "amateurs have been the backbone of the game" brought them together in the U.S. National Senior Golf Association eight years ago.

Now the association, founded by 61-year-old Joe Mozel of Los Angeles, has more than 700 members and is sponsor of the 1964 National Seniors Open Golf Tournament with a total pro and amateur purse of nearly $45,000.

"There's nothing like it any place," says Mozel, who retired for the second time three years ago. He formerly was pro at Green Hills, Millbrae, Calif.

What Mozel describes as a strong field tees off in a preliminary pro-am best ball, event today. Seventy-two hole medal play opens Wednesday and runs through Saturday.

The pros will collect about $30,000 in prize money and the amateurs will win prizes and trophies valued at up to $15,000, Mozel said. All players must be at least 50 years old and members of the association. Helping to sponsor the tourney are three major Reno hotels and a large gambling casino.

One of the favorites is E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, a PGA Hall of Fame member who has won the past three National Seniors tourneys, including the 1963 meet at Sun City, Ariz.

Expected to give Harrison lots of competition are Jimmy Demarret, three-time winner of the Masters tourney, Chuck Congdon, Johnny Bulla, Joe Brown, Ellsworth Vines, John Barnum and Chuck White.

The field of 250, including 65 pros, will be trimmed to 150 on Thursday and 75 on Friday. The final 18 holes will be played on the Hidden Valley Country Club course. Preliminary events will be divided between Hidden Valley and the Washoe County course.

The medal play winner will collect $5,000 in first place money. Players range in age up to 86, Mozel says.

Canon Hunters Help to Fight Four-Acre Fire

A Canon City hunting party of 12 helped control a grass fire Sunday afternoon covering four acres on Baldy Mountain, four miles soutwest of Guffey, State District Forester Don Young of Canon City, has reported.

Young said the fire was discovered about 2 p.m., and hunters in the area arrived shortly afterward at the location of the blaze. He said the fire was "obviously started by a hunter who carelessly threw away a match or a cigarette."

Young said the United States Forest Service reported the location of the fire, and he and Arlen Kennedy of the Bureau of Land Management, arrivd at the location about 6 p.m., extinguishing the blaze about 9 p.m.

"The hunters helped contain the fire," Young reported, "and we mopped it up."

Robert A. and Donald L. Ankrum of Guffey, Dean and Gene MacKinnon of Wetmore, and W. E. Sigler of Boone, met Young and Kennedy in Guffey, and directed them to the fire.

Hunters who fought the blaze were Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dell, Ted Dell, Jr., all of Canon City, who were with the following friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Caputo, Joe, Jim, and Debbie Caputo, all of Decatur, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rogers of Pueblo, and Mr. and Mrs. Art Sweet of Pueblo.

Young said, "The fire was contained for several hours by these hunters. It should be mentioned that they resented very much taking out time in their hunting to put out the fire caused by carelessness of some other hunter."

The U. S. Forest Service and State Forest Service have issued warnings to hunters on the extreme dryness, and have advised hunters to use caution with the use of fire, and in discarding matches or cigarettes.

E. R. Trekell, of Canon City, assistant ranger in the San Carlos district, reported Saturday that a U. S. Forest Service patrolman had put out a warming fire that had been left burning near the top of Greenhorn Mountain, about five miles southwest of Lake Isabel.

Trekell said the fire was discovered Saturday and extinguished by Harry Carmack of Canon City, adding that the fire had apparently been started by a hunter on the first day of hunting on the western slope.

Fire danger is extremely high, Trekell reported. He said a light snow had fallen on higher elevations, but lower elevations still have not received any moisture.

GOP Official Says Campaign Charges False

Cy Wells, secretary of the state Republican Party, labeled "trought - happy charges" brought against Senator Barry Goldwater as "completely false" and the campaign "tactics of a demagogue" Wednesday.

"The Democrats have tried to inject false issues into the presidential campaign. They have conducted a campaign based on the fear element," said Wells as he spoke to members of the Republican Women's Roundtable.

Another false fear issue that the administration has injected into the campaign, said Wells, is that Barry Goldwater is against public education for your children.

"The truth is," he continued "Senator Goldwater believes the federal government has no right to educate your children, that public education should be left to state and local government."

Wells, a native of Littleton with a masters degree in political science from the University of Colorado, called the anti-poverty bill of the Johnson Administration "socialistic."

Socialism can be compared to drug addiction, he said. "Every step the government takes toward regulation of our lives is like a shot of morphine. Every shot in the arm is another weakening of individual strength and moral fibre."

Each welfare measure the public accepts makes the next step easier and more desirable, said Wells. "I believe a welfare state takes care of many who do not need to be taken care of," he continued. "The government should care for only those who are unable to care for themselves."

Camp Hale Used In Container Exposure Test

One-ton containers made of fiber board are being tested at Camp Hale by exposure to extremely cold weather. Temperatures range downward to 45 degrees below zero at the two-mile high subpost near Leadville.

The U.S. Army General Equipment Test Activity at Ft. Lee Va., is conducting the test which will extend through June 1965. Engineering technicians from Ft. Lee will makeperiodic reviews of the containers.

The 176 palletized containers are stacked in rows near the Camp Hale cantonment area. They are filled with various bulk materials to approximate packed conditions, sealed with metal strapping and will be guarded by personnel assigned to Camp Hale from Ft. Carson.

The scenic subpost is the only Army installation in Continental United States combining high altitude and subfreezing winter conditions for specialized training and testing.

It was the site of training for World War II by the 10th Mountain Division which distinguished itself in the Italian campaign and is used for infantry training under its specialized conditions.

Battalion Gets Excellent Rate

— Ft. Carson's 1st Battalion, 19th Artillery achieved an excellent rating with a 91 percent score in a Continental Army Command Chemical Biological Radiological (CBR) — Field Training Exercise held recently.

During the 36 hours of the test, the 19th Artillery was subjected to "intense CBR conditions" as described by Major John Stenger, 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) chemical officer.

Maj. Stenger was chief umpire and controller for the exercise. The 19th received one superior and one excellent in the test.

Included in the test were aircraft spraying with simulated toxic ingredients, chemical interdiction fire, day and night nuclear attack, biological agentsfrom aggressor aircraft, early morning ground chemical agents attack and simulated artillery shells.

Also used was the new tear gas, a riot control agent, which forces the men to put on their protective masks.

The test was given during July to the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry.

Lt Col. J. C. Kiefe Jr., 19th Artillery commander, said the battalion welcomed the opportunity to take this training exercise because his men had learned so much from it.

Fraternity Aids In Work on YMCA Camp

Members of Sigma Chi Fraternity at Colorado College spent October 24 working on the Catamount YMCA Family Camp outside of Woodland Park.

Some 25 fraternity members spent the day staining the shelter, clearing trees and brush from the area and cutting wood for this winter's supply as part of their annual Community Service Day.

The project was part of the fraternity's tradition of volunteering several days throughout the year to participate in service projects for the community.

In addition to helping the YMCA, the Sigma Chis have worked with the Colorado Springs Boys Club for the past two years.

... about financial success. The first step towards this much-sought-after goal is the basic protection of the family through Life Insurance.

Should you buy now? Or can it be put off safely if both husband and bride are working? The wise thing is to buy now. Postponement till you're older means higher premiums and the risk of poor health striking in the meantime. Someday too, that second income may stop, making it doubly important that a new mother be guaranteed a living income—an income enabling her to devote full time to raising that precious new addition.

The best buy for the young family is permanent insurance. It provides that most important guarantee of family income. In addition, it's a savings plan providing cash in an emergency and funds for long-range objectives such as a university education for a son.

Call the Man from Manufacturers about financial success through insurance. You'll find him a competent and friendly adviser.

VARY SANDWICHES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If a sandwich is to be the "main dish" packed in a lunch-box, give it a high-protein filling, says U.S. Department of Agriculture nutritionists.

Vary the fillings to avoid monotony. Try flaked cooked fish with chopped raw cabbage and salad dressing, or cold baked beans moistened with thick chili sauce, diced sweet pickle, and thinly sliced onion or cucumber.

Dependents Return From Guantanamo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half the American women and children living at Guantanamo when Cuba shut off the naval base's water supply last winter have returned to the United States, the Navy reported today.

The U.S. family population of Guantanamo totaled 1,747 as of Oct. 1. Last February it stood at 2,994. All dependents are expected to be gone by February 1966.

Gradual removal of dependents of American naval and civilian personnel was ordered Feb. 11 as one of a number of measures designed to make the base self-sufficient.

Several days earlier Fidel Castro shut off Guantanamo's fresh water source in retaliation for U.S. seizure of some Cuban fishermen who had strayed into American waters. Less than a month later, Castro offered to turn the water back on but the United States spurned that offer.

To make the base independent of outside water sources, the government ordered construction of three plants for converting salt water to fresh, with a daily output of 2.2 million gallons.

Two of the three plants have been finished and are producing 1.5 million gallons a day, the Navy said. The third plant is on schedule and due to be in business in mid-December.

As a result, Navy tankers which had been shuttling back and forth between Florida and the Guantanamo base for seven months have been relieved. In all, they hauled more than 293 gallons of fresh water to the base.

Families leave the base as their menfolk finish two-year tour periods. New men are sent to Guantanamo on one-year tours, without their wives and children.

The military population of the base is 4,125 men, plus 154 U.S. civilian workers.

To keep morale from slipping, the Navy said it is expected that married men sent to the base without their families "will be able to return to the States once during their tour for leave."

"Extensive plans are in the mill for Christmas leave," the Navy said. "Single men will also be given leave in the States or in Jamaica."

The number of Cuban workers coming onto the base each day and returning home to Castro territory at night has been reduced by about two-thirds from the 1,800 total at the time of the water cutoff.

The Navy said between 500 and 600 Cuban workers come through the gate on an average work day. Another 600 or so live on the base and never cross back into Cuba.

Jobless Man Held in Probe of Robberies

ATLANTA (AP) — An Atlanta man who said he could not obtain work because of a speech impediment has been charged with leading a three-man robbery gang which terrorized grocery stores here for five months.

"Every time I went anywhere people laughed at the way I talk," Thomas Benjamin Carter, 25, told police Monday.

Detectives said Carter, who stutters badly, and Walter Jones, 27, and Jessie Lee Bynum, 30, had admitted 10 armed robberies of grocery stores and one attempted robbery.

PARADE — As 150-piece Northern Illinois University's marching band moves along, it has an added start in DeKalb, Ill. No. 75, in football uniform from unknown midget team, gets in step, perhaps in preparation for becoming a 1975 scatback or maybe he just likes band music. (AP Wirephoto)

Negro Ball Player Is Threatened

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — Curt Flood, star center fielder for the world champion St. Louis Cardinals baseball team announced his intention to move into a rented home today despite an alleged threat to stop him with a shotgun.

Flood, who said Monday that he was "upset, but I'm not angry," has the backing of Superior Court Judge Richard Arnason and the sheriff's office.

Flood, 25, charged in a court suit that he and his family were threatened after he signed a lease to rent a suburban home in Alamo, about 15 miles east of Oakland.

The suit, filed in Contra Costa County Superior Court, asked $10,000 in damages plus a restraining order allowing the family to move in. Judge Arnason granted the restraining order.

Defendants in the case are Constance A. Oliver of Zephyr Cove, Nev., owner of the home, and George C. Finn, who allegedly signed the lease after obtaining power of attorney from Mrs. Oliver.

The shotgun threat was made, according to the lawsuit, by Finn after he had signed the lease and later discovered that Flood is a Negro.

Phyllis Scofield, acting as agent for real estate agent David Robinson, leased the $35,000 house to Flood at $290 a month for one year.

Mrs. Schofield took the lease to Finn. He signed it, she said, and later inquired of Mrs. Schofield whether the lessees were Caucasians.

Finn became "very enraged," according to Mrs. Schofield, when she told him that Flood was a Negro.

Finn, accompanied by another man — both armed with shotguns — parked his car across the home's driveway and threatened to shoot any Negro who tried to move in, the suit claimed.

Robert Condon, Flood's attorney, said "We're going into that house at 1:30 p.m. regardless. I've talked with the sheriff's office and they've promised to have a squad car there."

The neighborhood already has two Negro families, Flood said.

Finn, who with his twin brother, Charles, made news a decade ago in a prolonged legal fight over a surplus airplane they bought, could not be reached for comment.
